'HOT MIX' SUITS NOTHING TO ME, DAVEY ASSERTS

Fraud Findings Only Minor Compared to Praise for Department, He Says.

CASE 'UP TO COURTS'

Governor Holds Collusion Charge No Responsibility for His Office.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ralph J. Bartlett, Franklin county prosecutor, said today he intended to determine whether there was sufficient basis for a grand jury investigation of alleged fraudulent practices involving the state highway department.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—The outcome of suits arising from "hot mix" highway projects "is of no concern to the highway department nor myself," Governor Martin L. Davey declared today in a written statement.

Commenting on the report of the highway board of inquiry, which criticized the highway department, the governor said that as soon as he has had time to complete his study of the board's findings he "will take appropriate action, as may be indicated by the facts disclosed."

Silent for Months.

The statement was the first public comment the governor has made on either the report of the board of professors he appointed last October or the decision in Franklin county common pleas court enjoining payment of "hot mix" contractors under contracts awarded by the highway department.

"As far as the hot mix contractors are concerned, they are private citizens," the governor's statement said. "Their case is now in a court of law.

"Their case must stand on its own merit, just like other private citizens. I have never met a member of that industry, to my knowledge, and have no interest in them except as they comply with the law and give the state full value for what they receive."

Points to Praise.

About the report of the highway board of inquiry, the governor said:

"The thing that amazes and pleases me is the fact that they found relatively so little to criticize and so many things to commend, in view of the vast operations of the highway department."

FLEE WITH $162

3 Bandits Hold Up Attendant at Gasoline Station.

Apparently timed to take place while thousands of Mansfielders were attending the July Fourth celebration at the Fairground, three bandits drove into Mack's filling station, 357 North Main street, robbed the attendant of $162 and then drove south.

Police were called at 9:20 p. m. yesterday by P. D. McDaniel, who operates the station. He said the light sedan with Michigan license plates drove up but before he could get out of the station one of the men leaped from the car while the other two remained in the machine. The man who entered the station flourished a large caliber revolver and forced McDaniel to turn over the receipts, the attendant reported to police.

After stuffing the bills in his pocket, McDaniel said the bandit ran to the car just outside the door and the trio headed south on Main street.

FEUD BLAMED

Ohioan Kills Neighbor, Self After Fence Dispute.

ZANESVILLE —(INS)— A long standing dispute over the fence between their adjoining properties was blamed today for the slaying of Albert Mercer, 54, by Carey Leasure, 70, who then committed suicide. Leasure, before shooting himself, penned a note in which he said Mercer had encroached upon his property.

Ohio Woman Burned To Death Trying To Start Fire.

BRYAN, O.—(INS)—While starting a fire with kerosene in a kitchen stove, Mrs. Gertrude Puffenberger, 38, was burned to death today in the resulting explosion and fire. Her residence and its contents were destroyed by flames. Her husband and seven children survive.

20,000 See Pageant, Fireworks, As City Marks Second Sane 4th

Thousands of Others Outside Grounds Watch Spectacular Display That Hits New High For Noise, Beauty; History Unfolded In 'Cavalcade.'

Mansfield was figuratively holding its aching ear drums today after a Fourth of July celebration that for noise, spectacular beauty, historical and patriotic influence, will go down in community history as one of the biggest and best ever held.

It was the second "sane Fourth" program in the city's history—the first was held last year—and was arranged and sponsored by the Mansfield Public Parks association, which started the "sane Fourth" idea last year.

An estimated 20,000 jammed the Fairground—5,000 more than turned out last year, when fireworks alone constituted the principal attraction.

But a crowd that could not possibly be estimated saw the fireworks last night from every vantage point in the city—although obviously they could not see the pageantry of the cavalcade.

Cars were parked on Lumbermens Heights, on the Ashland hill, on Trimble road—on practically every "high place" in the city. By a conservative estimate some 10,000 persons watched the pyrotechnic display from outside the Fairground.

The display itself far exceeded that of last year, both in the number of pieces and in spectacular effect, winding up with a deafening salvo of bombs that actually shook the earth.

At the conclusion of the fireworks such phrases as "the best I ever saw," and "better than anything they had at the Chicago exposition" were frequently heard, as the huge crowd made its way slowly homeward.

Celebration Lasts 10 Hours.

There were a few cases of burned hands and fingers at the Fairground, the result of individual fireworks displays by youngsters, but the 10-hour celebration was essentially an entirely sane one—Mansfield's own contribution to the national trend toward "bigger and better and saner" commemorations of Independence day.

The program began at 1 p. m. and was climaxed last night with the historical American cavalcade and fireworks. It was a community-wide affair, with more than 700 persons participating in the afternoon and evening sessions.

During the afternoon the program was made up of stunts by the Mansfield playground groups, Boy Scouts and community groups.

The festivities opened with the reading of a proclamation by Mayor Claude M. Hunter and raising of the flag by Boy Scouts. Under the direction of Al Fen-

FUGITIVE HELD AFTER CHASE

Officers Capture Inmate Who Escaped O. S. R. After Race Through Woods, Fields.

Captured after a chase through woods and fields near Perrysville about midnight Saturday, Henry Lambert, 27, of Lucas, who escaped from the Mansfield reformatory nearly two years ago, was back in the reformatory today.

Traced through the license plates on his car after he sold 10 bushels of stolen wheat to a Loudonville grain dealer, Lambert was run down by Sheriff E. P. Long, Deputy Sheriff Glenn C. Humphrey and Corp. Scott B. Radcliffe of the state highway patrol.

Sheriff Long said the new state law which requires grain dealers to keep a record of purchases and a description of the person who sells them produce, was responsible for Lambert's capture. The wheat sold by Lambert had been stolen from the farm of Fred Mecklin, near Perrysville, officers said.

Lambert walked away from the reformatory in 1936 after serving about a year for non-support of his family. He entered the reformatory Oct. 9, 1935.

Sheriff Long said he would file charges of breaking and entering against Lambert in connection with the theft of the wheat from the Mecklin farm.

Before he was sentenced to the reformatory for a one to three year term, Lambert had been in custody a number of times, officers said, on charges of non-support, operating a car without the owner's consent, and theft.

RINGLING SHOW RESUMES TOUR

Takes New Name To Complete Season's Circus Stops.

SARASOTA, Fla. — (U.P.) — The big show, under the same canvas but with a new name, went back on the road today to complete the circus swing halted by labor difficulties.

Ringling and Barnum and Bailey circus, under the lease and name of Al G. Barnes Show, headed north to apear in most of the towns the "greatest show on earth" had been scheduled to play.

The Barnes show is a subsidiary of the huge Ringling enterprises. Under the reorganized setup, in which most of the big show units will take part, managers of the circus apparently hoped to avoid labor trouble similar to that which bogged the circus down in a strike at Scranton, Pa., 10 days ago.

ICKES CHEERED

Secretary Says Steel Price Cut Evidence of Co-operation.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Recent steel price reductions drew praise last night from Secretary Ickes, who termed them "highly encouraging" evidence of business co-operation with government in trying to end the recession.

Ickes urged that building material manufacturers also reduce prices, asserting it would be "of material aid in the president's program to help business and reduce unemployment."

RESCUED FROM LAKE

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Samuel A. Hoke of Dayton and John S. McKeighan of Rocky River were rescued from Lake Erie after clinging for a half hour yesterday to their overturned motorboat about a half-mile from shore.

Cavalcade Shows Highlights of History

The stately minuet—Washington's farewell speech to the nation—Lincoln's immortal Gettysburg address—all of these were re-enacted in the colorful cavalcade of American history at the Fairground last night as a feature of Mansfield's community-wide celebration of Independence day. Top picture shows a group of dancers in the minuet, favorite dance of Colonial America. Lower left is J. Gilbert Baird, sales promotion manager of Westinghouse, who directed the elaborate revue; lower center is Richard E. Kelley as George Washington. Lower right is Charles E. Newcomb who presented a striking resemblance to Lincoln as he delivered the Gettysburg address. Some 20,000 people packed every inch of available space at the Fairground to see the cavalcade and the fireworks that followed it.

$5,000,000 Count's Price For Divorce, Barbara Says

Woolworth Heiress Testifies Titled Husband Also Demanded Son's Custody; Tells Court of Threats.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow's battery of noted legal talent today accused her titled Danish husband of demanding $5,000,000 and their two-year-old son Lance in return for a divorce in a tense hearing in Bow street court.

In the course of two and a half hours of sensational testimony to support charges against the handsome Count Kurt, he also was accused of threatening to shoot an unnamed Mayfair society man "like a dog."

The golden-haired, black-clad Woolworth heiress kept her sad, child-like eyes on the back of her husband's head as her attorneys declared he had threatened to "put her on the spot" and had laughed at a proffered gift of $250,000 as "an insult."

Barbara Feared Violence.

The hearing was adjourned until July 13. Today's testimony was on the countess' charges that her husband had placed her in fear of her life or bodily harm.

He was released again on bail of £2,000 ($10,000), as in the case of his first hearing last Friday immediately after returning from France to face his wife's charges.

DUNLAVY QUITS

Leaves Duffy Unopposed for Nomination at Primary.

COLUMBUS— (AP) —Dennis F. Dunlavy of Ashtabula withdrew today as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney general, leaving Atty. General Herbert S. Duffy unopposed in the Aug. 9 primary.

Dunlavy, now a member of the state utilities commission, informed Secretary of State William J. Kennedy that illness prompted his decision to withdraw. Dunlavy is a patient at Grant hospital here, and physicians advised him not to make the campaign.

Charles Cavan of Cleveland, who had filed for the same position, was disqualified by Kennedy shortly after the filing deadline.

Dunlavy entered reputedly with the support of Gov. Martin L. Davey, who has often been at odds with Duffy.

TAX BOOKS OPEN

Mansfielder First in Line for Real Estate Collections.

Myron Chapman, 15 Newlon place, was the county's No. 1 taxpayer this morning as books opened for the collection of $890,000 in second half real estate and special assessment levies.

Chapman was the first to the treasurer's office with his payment, Deputy Treasurer Charles Payne said. He was followed by Peter Frisch, 232 West Sixth street; W. B. Hammett, 198 Helen avenue, and Ralph Shively, 97 Arlington avenue.

More than $20,000 has been collected so far on the second half tax bill, most of it before the books opened this morning, Treasurer John E. Kolb said.

Books will be open for payment without penalty until Aug. 20.

OPERATIONS UP

Bethlehem Steel Increases Production Second Time.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—(AP)—Steel production rose here today for the second time since June 13, as the Bethlehem Steel corporation lighted two more furnaces.

With 11 furnaces now in operation in this plant, ingot production in Buffalo rose to 30 per cent of capacity, compared with 28 per cent a week ago.

Calls NLRB's Settlement of Cases Just 'Shotgun Weddings'

WASHINGTON—Approximately 80 per cent of the 6,090 settled by voluntary agreement by the National Labor Relations board were forced upon the employers, Senator Burke (D) of Nebraska, charged today in a round denunciation of the board's activities.

Burke, who is conducting a national survey of opinion of the board's decisions, directed his criticism at the board's third anniversary statement. It declared that 55 per cent of the 11,180 cases settled by the board in the last three years were by agreement of employers and workers.

"I estimate that at least four-fifths of them were forced on employers with their backs to the wall," Burke said.

"There was nothing voluntary about these agreements. They were 'shotgun marriages.' Instead of being a credit to the board, they reflect discreit. Scores of complaints I have received will bear this out. There will be some shocking disclosures when I make the facts public."

In Mansfield recently, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company agreed, after a conference with labor board representatives, to disband its Industrial Relations council, an organization of employes, which was described as a company union in a complaint filed by the United Electrical and Radio Workers, and to reinstate one worker. There was no formal hearing.

Last week, a hearing on charges of discrimination against the same union was held here, with the Ohio Brass company as defendant. No decision has been given as yet by the board.

5 ARRESTED IN 'NUMBERS' GAME

'Writers' Accused of Promoting Scheme of Chance to Face Court Tomorrow.

Five accused Mansfield "numbers writers" will face Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court tomorrow on charges of promoting and selling tickets in a scheme of chance.

Three of the group, Nick Poulous, 50, of 144 North Diamond street; John Dadlis, 41, of 170 North Mulberry street, and Wesley Bradley, 42, colored, of 112 Touby street, were released on cash bonds today.

The other two, Ferne Buell, 56, and Charles Powell, 40, colored, both of 49 Elm street, unable to furnish bonds of $100 each, were still in jail.

The men were arrested by detectives on North Main street Saturday, who said they also raided the quarters at Elm street and confiscated a carton of policy books. They said all of the men had partly used books in their possession when apprehended.

Poulous, said by police to be the operator of the "numbers" racket in Mansfield, is charged with promoting a scheme of chance and posted $500 cash bond. Dadlis and Bradley, both charged with selling tickets in a scheme of chance, posted cash bonds of $100 each.

ALARM ABATES

Ohio River Farmers Relieved As Water's Rise Halts.

PORTSMOUTH —(INS)— Scioto Valley farmers breathed easier as F. B. Winter, river observer, reported a crest of only 22 feet would be reached by the Ohio river sometime today.

The farmers, who own vast acreages of corn land in the low river bottoms, saw their crops washed away several weeks ago by sudden rises in the Scito river and tributaries and then replanted.

DEMOTED OFFICER SUICIDE

NEW YORK — (INS) — Failing health and a recent demotion today were held responsible for the suicide of Police Inspector Charles L. Neidig. While his family played host to friends, Neidig walked into his yard and shot himself to death.

TWO MEN, WOMAN LOSE LIVES IN TRAFFIC CRASHES

Richland Deaths For Year Reach 12 as Result of Holiday Mishaps; Driver of Truck Held By Police After Woman Passenger Dies.

Three more traffic deaths—making the total five for the month to date—were chalked up in Richland county today, as city, state and nation recounted the toll of accidents over Independence day.

One of the three to die in Mansfield was Joseph Murphy, 35, of Wickcliffe, who was hurt in last Friday night's three-car crash on the Ashland road, northeast of Mansfield. He was the third fatality of that accident.

William Griefenstein, 66, of Crestline, was instantly killed early Sunday morning, when he was hit by a car at Ontario.

Mrs. Wilbur Wilson, 24, 258 Park avenue east, died in General hospital early Monday, after a car in which she was riding hit a tree just this side of Crestline on route 30N.

Meanwhile the toll in the nation of violent deaths from all causes reached a total of 513, with Ohio contributing no less than 21 to that total.

Fire of those deaths were due to fireworks accidents. Motor crashes killed at least 256, an Associated Press survey of 46 states and the District of Columbia showed. There were 193 drownings. The rest of the deaths were attributed to suicides, shootings, trains, falls and home accidents.

Thirteen died in Ohio traffic accidents.

The three Richland county traffic accidents brought the county's total for the year to date to 12, passing the 1937 mark of 10 for the same period.

Richland County's 1938 Traffic Toll

12

This date last year—10

Of the county's 12 fatal traffic accidents, however, only two have occurred within the city itself, and the Fourth passed without the report of a single Mansfield accident in which there was an injury. Police and sheriff's deputies were able to handle the heavy traffic to and from the Fairground yesterday without serious incident, although there were the expected number of traffic snarls, especially at the conclusion of the day's program.

Mrs. Wilson died in the Crestline Emergency hospital at 6 a. m. yesterday of a fractured skull sustained when the truck in which she was riding crashed into a tree on U. S. route 30N, three miles east of Crestline.

State highway patrolmen were holding the driver, Aubrey Wilson, 27, of Indianapolis, Ind., in the county jail until they complete their investigation of the accident.

Although the two had the same name they were not related, officers said.

Fell Asleep, Claim.

They said that Wilson, employed by the Aero Mayflower Transit company of Indianapolis, was driving the moving van when he apparently fell asleep at the wheel. They said the truck left the highway, plowed through a ditch for approximately 200 feet and then struck a large tree. Mrs. Wilson was pinned in the cab that was crushed by the force of the impact. The driver escaped without injury.

The officers quoted Wilson as saying he had met Mrs. Wilson in Mansfield and that they were going swimming when the accident occurred, at 5:30 a. m. Monday.

Greifenstein was struck by a car as he walked across U. S. route 30S at Ontario. He was instantly killed.

State highway patrolmen said Greifenstein, who was crossing the highway with a friend, walked into the path of a machine driven by Clyde Bowersock, 21, R. D. 2, Ashland.

Car Hits Tree.

They said the force of the impact threw the aged man against the windshield causing the driver to lose control of the car. The machine, they said, skidded across the road and struck a tree, demolishing the car.

Bowersock was not held but had been ordered to report to the county prosecutor's office today for questioning.

Greifenstein, a lifelong resident of Crestline had been employed as a molder at the old Schill company.

7 Burned Here as Move To Ban Fireworks In State Opens

While scores of Ohioans, including seven in Mansfield, were treated yesterday for injuries resulting from Fourth of July fireworks, Judge Lee E. Skeel, president of the Cleveland Safety council, launched a drive to prohibit the sale of fireworks in the state, except for public displays.

Judge Skeel said the council would draft a bill to submit to the state legislature next winter, calling for a ban on the sale of fireworks to individuals.

Ralph C. Lutz, Richland county's representative to the legislature, said today he favored the Cleveland council's movement and would support the measure if it comes before the house of representatives.

"I think the trend is toward more restrictions on the sale of fireworks, and municipalities have not effectively handled the problem," Lutz said.

There were no deaths in the state as the result of fireworks.

Five persons were treated at the county fairground during the celebration yesterday when they were burned by the premature explosion of fireworks.

They were Farrell Stuff, Sixth avenue, eye injury; Richard Edwards, East Mansfield, five fingers on left hand burned by firecracker; Forrest Loeckel, 324 Sturges avenue, burns and lacerations on left hand; Willie Russell, no ad-

Heavy July Toll Hits County Effort to Cut Traffic Deaths

Richland county completed the first half of 1938 with a better traffic safety record than for the same period last year, but it slipped badly during the first four days of July when an epidemic of accidents claimed five lives and brought the total dead to 12 for the year.

In the first six months of 1938, Richland county had seven traffic deaths, as compared with nine for the first six months of the preceding year.

But in four short days in July, five deaths were recorded, and the cause of each was chalked up as "traffic accident." Thus four days saw nearly as many lives claimed as the entire six preceding months.

And the total for the year as of July 5 now stands at 12—the result of those five deaths in four days, as compared to only 10 up to July 5 of last year.

One crash—that northeast of the city last Friday night—accounted for a fourth of all the year's deaths, as the third person injured in that mishap, Joseph Murphy, 35, Wickcliffe, died in General hospital.

Two other deaths followed over the week-end—one Saturday night and the other Monday morning.

Only two of the 12 fatal accidents have occurred in the city—the other 10 having been on roads in the county.

Inadequate Relief Program Waits Davey's Signature

PROBLEMS IN BIG COUNTIES LEFT UNSOLVED

Funds for Urban Areas Still Insufficient; Rural Sectors Get Money Not Needed.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Ohio's newest poor relief program for 1938 goes to Gov. Martin L. Davey this week still without a solution of a major financing problem—finding a formula under which the state can grant to needy urban counties enough funds without literally flooding the rural counties' treasuries.

About a dozen counties, all of them with large, industrial cities, have a serious relief problem. Another dozen need funds but only on a small scale. The remainder can handle their relief rolls without aid this year and some of them already have enough money to care for their needy three to five years at the present rate.

All 88 Benefit.

Yet all 88 counties will share in relief funds made available in the special session ended last week, distributions being based on their relative size in several factors.

Proposals to allocate revenues from state relief taxes on a basis of need have arisen in each legislative session for the last several years but each time have been rejected overwhelmingly. Rural legislators argue that their counties are entitled to share in revenues from taxes imposed upon their constituents and there the matter ends.

The new relief program provides for distribution on a basis designed to provide the larger counties with a slightly higher proportion of the total revenues.

The new distribution formula is made up of three factors, each counting equally, in determining the counties' relative shares. The factors are population of the county, its real estate tax duplicate and the municipal tax duplicates within the county.

Cuyahoga Still Short.

Cuyahoga county where relief needs are most acute, will receive approximately 23 per cent of total revenues under the new formula against 20 per cent under the old. Other urban counties also will receive slightly higher percentages but the difference is small.

Rural counties which will need none or only a small part of their shares from relief taxes will be required to use the money from 1939 through 1941 for reduction of local real estate taxes.

When the funds are used for relief, local subdivisions must match "state money" dollar for dollar.

Blue and Grey Bid Sad Farewells on Gettysburg Fields

GETTYSBURG — (U.P.) — Armies of the North and South turned away from Gettysburg battlefield for the last time today with a note of sadness in their friendly farewells.

Many of the aged men of the Grand Army of the Republic and the United Confederate Veterans had clung tenaciously to their fading health that they might see this final reunion on the 75th anniversary of the biggest battle of the Civil war.

They have seen it now—an incomparable reunion in the history of the world's wars. Their knotted fingers have clapsed the hands of other old men they once fought on these same fields. They have heard President Roosevelt call upon the nation to struggle eternally for peace through democracy and have seen the prowess of the most modern military machines.

But perhaps most impressive to the men in faded blue and gray was the unveiling of a new monument on Oak Hill, where, henceforth, a flame will burn eternally above the battlefield as a symbol of the nation's peace and unity.

Quiz Hypnotist As Expectant Mother Dies

Up and Down THE STREET

Ralph B. Chapman, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., believes he bit off a large chunk when he opened an "odd job employment bureau" at the "Y" to find work for high school students during the summer months. To date Chapman has the names of 22 boys wanting jobs and to date he hasn't been able to find work for any of them. He'd be grateful if anyone having odd jobs would call the "Y."

Echo from the Fourth of July Cavalcade: A 3-year-old youngster who said his name was Junior Braddock met with a Big Adventure last night. He got lost and wandered, badly frightened, over to the stage where the cavalcade was being presented. A sailor in uniform found him, he was later amused by R. O. Richards by being shown what makes the wheels go round, and then Buffalo Bill (Harvey Bailey) hoisted him on his shoulders and carried him around the edge of the crowd until his mother sighted him . . . Laurence Todd forgot a song sheet and a motorcycle copper made the trip after it . . . The "hootch" dancer, Little Egypt, had to have a veil draped cautiously to hide the hair on "her" chest. No one could see "her" bare, number nine feet . . .

* * *

Another Echo: The Cavalcade program went off as it was scheduled on the program with two exceptions: the sound system delayed it somewhat and two persons failed to do their stunt. Paul W. (Chamber of Commerce) Williams and Jane (News-Journal) Williams were scheduled to ride in the 1908 Zimmerman auto with Capt. Frank Stahl of No. 4 fire station, but after taking one look at the narrow little single seat, they went into a huddle and decided that only a very slender girl could ooze into the seat beside the driver. Ruth Cox, one of the radio trio of girls, dressed in a pink linen suit of the early 1900's, was the passenger.

* * *

Still Another: Maybe the fellow who was in charge of shooting off the fireworks at the Fairground last night will read this, and come to the rescue of a few spectators, who wondered just how far up in the air those pretty rockets traveled before they exploded. It was quite an argument for a time, with estimates ranging anywhere from 100 feet to 1,000. The guy who guessed 100 finally boosted his ante to 300, but the fellow who said 1,000 wouldn't agree to anything short of that. Anybody actually know?

MAPS FLIGHT

Hughes to Leave for Paris in Two Weeks, N. Y. Told.

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Howard Hughes, 32-year-old millionaire sportsman and airplane speed champion, said today he would take off within two weeks on a flight to Paris and possibly around the world in his twin-motored monoplane which he landed at Floyd Bennett field at 6:38 (EST) last night after a seven-hour flight from Wichita, Kan.

Four assistants will accompany him across the ocean to publicize New York's world fair in 1939. They plan a comparatively slow and safe flight, he said.

He tested a radio receiver on the flight from Burbank, Calif., where he left Sunday, and Wichita, and said he had picked up a station in Honolulu, 5,000 miles away.

His plans beyond flying to Paris, he said, were indefinite.

STRICKEN AT 61

J. H. Dickerson, Crawford County, Succumbs in Columbus.

GALION—John Harvey Dickerson, 61, two miles east of here, died early today in a Columbus hospital after a brief illness.

Surviving are his wife, Emma; three daughters, Mrs. Clayton Weber of Crestline, Mrs. Robert Tracht and Miss Magdalene Dickerson of Galion; three sons, Philip of Mansfield, Lester and Clark of Galion, and eight grandchildren. He was a member of the First Lutheran church of Galion and the Eagles lodge.

The body was removed to the Snyder funeral home here pending completion of funeral arrangements.

INFANT BURIED TODAY

Funeral services for the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Frey, 192 North Mulberry street, who died Sunday afternoon at General hospital, were held today at the Finefrock funeral home. Burial was in Mansfield cemetery. Surviving beside his parents is a twin brother.

VAN NUYS SEEN SURE WINNER

Townsend Invites Senator to Seek Election Again in Sudden Shift on Stand.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Gov. M. Clifford Townsend, head of the Indiana Democratic party, undertook today to rescind his informal expulsion of Senator Frederick Van Nuys and return him to the party fold. Because Van Nuys voted against President Roosevelt's court reorganization bill, Townsend had read him out of the party.

The governor sent a telegram to Van Nuys, inviting him to become a candidate for renomination at the party's state convention next week, July 11 and 12. Inasmuch as Townsend had been considered the chief obstacle in the way of Van Nuys' renomination, observers believed the intra-party strife was ended. Van Nuys had planned to run as an independent and had been assured the help of 11 Democratic senators who promised to stump for him in Indiana.

His supporters looked on the invitation as assuring him of the nomination.

The concensus among Democratic leaders was that Van Nuys would accept. Many believed that Townsend's invitation was equivalent to giving Van Nuys renomination because the state organization controls 85 per cent of convention delegates.

WITHDRAWAL OF NAZI MILITARY CHIEF SENSATION TO SHANGHAI

(By United Press)

SHANGHAI — Gen. Alexander Von Falkenhausen, chief of the German military mission to China, left Hankow today with the last of his associates at the order of the German Nazi government. Dispatches from Hankow, reporting the departure, asserted that the German military chieftain said in his farewell message:

"I feel sure that China is gaining final victory and that Japan will fail both in war and peace."

The statement caused a sensation here. It was known that Falkenhausen left only with great reluctance at the peremptory order of his government. Also it was reported from Hankow that after the first order for his departure, he had told foreign military attaches that he would not leave China unless he was threatened with prosecution in Germany.

In a recent farewell message to Chinese troops, Gen. Falkenhausen was reported to have expressed unending loyalty to and sympathy with the Chinese army, and to have said that he regretted his government's recall left him no alternative to a return to Germany. It was reported that even this statement brought him a stern reprimand from Germany.

The Chinese government consented to the departure of the Germans only after exhausting every means to persuade them to stay. The Nazi government was so angry at the attitude of the government that it ordered its ambassador, Dr. Oskar Trautmann, to return to Berlin, and dispatches from there quoted diplomatic quarters as expressing belief that he would not return, or be replaced, for a considerable time.

PROBERS GRILL SHOWMAN AFTER STRANGE DEATH

Vaudeville Performer Denies He Used 'Powers' on Young California Housewife.

(By International News Service)

GLENDALE, Cal. — Did pretty Mrs. Marie Colombos, 23-year-old expectant mother, die while she was under the hypnotic spell of Robert Avery Gilbert, 49, for 27 years a vaudeville hypnotist, or did she die from poison?

Detectives sought an answer to that question today as they held Gilbert on a charge of suspicion of murder and waited for a complete autopsy report to establish a definite cause of her death.

Gilbert himself, after long hours of grilling, told police an amazing story of the strange death of Mrs. Colombos.

Only last month, Gilbert won considerable attention when he assisted in a painless "post hypnosis" childbirth in which Mrs. Ethel Gaynor gave birth to a girl while under the spell of hypnotism.

With Her at Death.

After steadfastly denying that he had been in the Colombos home, Gilbert finally admitted, police said, that he was alone with Mrs. Colombos when she died, but he claimed he was not responsible.

Gilbert insisted that at no time was the girl under his hypnotic powers.

He had been called to the Colombos home, he said, by George Colombos, the woman's husband, to discuss the contemplated childbirth, some six months hence.

Police said they were holding to the theory for the time being that Gilbert did not go there to discuss a painless childbirth, but to prevent it.

"I knew of her condition," Gilbert said in his statement to the police. "Her husband invited me up to talk about it about a week before her death.

"Thursday morning I went to their home. Her husband and his friend, John Holmes, left.

"She was lifting a bed that weighed about 150 pounds.

"I walked toward the kitchen and as I did so, I heard a noise. I looked around and saw her on the floor. It looked like she had fainted. I called her name and she didn't answer.

"I left and started looking for Colombos, but could not find him. So I went back to the house, locked the door from the inside and climbed out a rear window."

CITY ATTACKED

Bombers, Believed of German Make, Raid Spanish Town.

BADALONA, Spain — (UP) — Thirteen nationalist airplanes, described as Junkers (German), dropped 50 bombs today on this industrial suburb five miles north of Barcelona, killing at least 14 persons and wounding many others.

The ancient town of Roman legend gradually was being reduced to ruins by a week of raids. There were great open gaps in the central area of the city of some 20,000.

Today's casualties were reduced because many of the houses were unoccupied. Civilians had not yet returned from the nearby hills where they fled during a raid last night in which 10 persons were killed and 20 wounded.

GEN. JOHNSON:

If War Ever Comes, We Will Need Coordinated Department of Defense

—By HUGH S. JOHNSON

BETHANY BEACH, Del.—There is a real suppressed concern in the administration about war—perhaps this year. Some intimates call it an "under-cover war-scare" and say that Joe Kennedy brought it back with him from London. I talked with Mr. Kennedy only momentarily, but I hear from him occasionally and I don't believe any such thing. But there are rumors of a plan to recreate unofficially a committee to "coordinate" national defense—somewhat similar to the "council of national defense" which did "coordinate" army and navy and industry for the World war.

War doesn't seem to me to be even a remote possibility this year, but if it ever threatens, such a committee would be absolutely necesary for us. We have what we call a "war" department but it is a wrong name. It is really an "army" department just as the correctly named navy department is really what the name says. We have no real war department.

* * *

Since the days when these two ministries were set up and named —one for land defense and the other for sea defense—war has gone into a third demension, the air. We have no aviation department for war. The last congress set up an air department for peaceful commercial aviation to bring under one head the former scattered governmental bureaus working in that field, but there is no air department to keep military and naval aviation in step. As a result, the naval and military air forces vie with each other for every advantage and appropriation. Functions are duplicated and there is little enough central direction.

* * *

The same thing is true of the supply services of army and navy purchase and procurement of munitions. The navy has one supply service, but the army has no less than five. This is no very serious matter in peace, but in the World war it paralyzed production for months. Each of these purchasing departments was independently responsible for results in an overcrowded market. They bid against each other for price, production and delivery.

They crammed the best manufacturers so full or orders that delivery was hindered. Their price competition raised costs to fantastic figures and they slipped so many orders into the north eastern industrial area, that there was complete congestion and shortage of transportation, fuel, material, electricity, labor and supplies.

* * *

Except for food, our supply of munitions to the western front had largely to be bought in Europe, although we spent billions vainly to build them here. If the war had not ceased so suddenly, it might have been a scandal.

While there is now supposed to be better planning and management, from a vivid experience in the World war, I would say it would prove totally inadequate and insufficient.

* * *

This illogical and incompetent situation is supposed to be solved by the fact that, under the constitution, the president is commander-in-chief of the army and navy. In practical effect that doesn't do the trick. The president is too many other things to be that to any practical purpose. When he tries to be, as Lincoln did early in the war among the states, disaster follows.

Mr. Roosevelt knows all about that and about all that has been said here. As assistant secretary of the navy he did one of the best of the wartime supply jobs, in spite of the confusion due to lack of any unitary war command.

* * *

The solution of the problem presented here is no easy matter. It is not at all clear that the usual suggestion of one true war department with sub-departments for army, navy and air is correct. But it is very certain that any move toward coordination, official or unofficial, advisory or administrative, is in the right direction.

Hollywood Speaks---

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Opening of Hollywood park gives the horsey movie colony 43 less days in which they'll have to rely on bookies for their thrills. . . . With Santa Anita and Del Mar (down the coast within easy week-end distance) already established, Hollywood has three first-class tracks at hand.

The new one, like the others, is a super-special production. The backdrop, or scenic effect across the track, doesn't touch Santa Anita's—but even Jack Warner can't move mountains. Out there the fans who've lost their all on the first race can contemplate the haze-covered peaks and pick one to jump from. At Inglewood (where Hollywood park lies) fans in the same unhappy circumstance can look across the pretty artificial lakes and study only rolling hills dotted with oil derricks and an occasional farmhouse. Not bad, though, at that. Maybe it's symbolic, or something, as a friend pointed out: Two biggest gambles are horses and oil. Hollywood park has both on display.

* * *

Big day, that opening. Studded with celebrities. Intimate glimpses: Mary Pickford munching a hot dog, Buddy Rogers quaffing a beer, in front row Turf club seats. . . . Jack Oakie wandering around, carrying little weight since his reducing campaign but not jockey size yet. . . . Marjorie Weaver looking like a college kid trying to look like a movie star. . . . Not so intimate glimpse: Barbara Stanwick putting the floral horseshoe on Air Chute, winner of the Hollywood Premiere race. . . .

Half a million dollars went through the machines, and Jack Warner and other Hollypark leaders smiled as they do after a hit preview. Warner used to chide his employes away from Santa Anita during working hours. The wisecrack current at Hollypark opening day was: "Heard what's happened? Jack Warner heard of four writers who stayed at their desks today, and he's fired 'em all. . . ."

* * *

Meanwhile Del Mar leaders (Bing Crosby, president; Pat O'Brien, vice-president; Oliver Hardy, Walter Connolly, Edmund Lowe, William LeBaron et als) had foregathered to plot an extra added attraction for their track opening July 29, six days after Hollypark's closing.

"At this meeting," the resultant bulletin assured us, "it was decided to inaugurate a new form of evening entertainment for the members of the Del Mar Jockey club. Every Friday night . . . there will be given for the turf patrons a preview of some recently completed feature picture. . . ."

So Del Mar will be the place for Hollywood folks to get away from it all.

Edible Oysters Are Not Source of Rare Pearls

Although it may ruin an illusion it is necessary to state that true pearls never occur in edible osyters

"Blister" pearls are attached to the shell and are not true pearls. They are flattened and irregular in shape.

"Conch" pearls are not usually classed as true pearls, as the shell of the conch pearl is pink—and it is from this that we get our shell cameos.

The source of the "oriental" pearl is the Persian gulf, the north and northeast coasts of Australia, Japan, Panama, Venezuela and the South Sea Islands. Fresh water pearls are found in the waters of the United States (mostly in tributaries to the Mississippi) and in Scotland.

Girl Feels Marriage Unwise

By VIRGINIA LEE

An undecided girl puts the following problem up to me and asks my counsel.

She is very much in love with a young man of 24. She is 20. He wants her to marry him, but for the following reasons she thinks they had better wait a while:

The young man has only recently obtained employment and earns merely a small salary. He has nothing saved.

She has a job but her salary—slightly larger than her fiance's—is used partly to support her parents who are quite old and her mother almost an invalid. She may lose her job if she marries, and both would have to work if they were to have enough to live on

Under those circumstances she feels they should wait two or three years, but the boy does not want to wait at all Is she unreasonable, she wants to know?

I think you show very good commonsense, Undecided Girl. If you married now the strain would be too great for both of you and love might fly out of the window I do not think you should be expected entirely to support your parents You have brothers and sisters But possibly they are not financially situated so that they can help

There is no use risking the loss of your job when you cannot live on what your fiance earns at present That would be suicidal. I know how hard it is to wait when you are both so much in love, but thousands of young people have done it, and found the greater happiness when at last circumstances allowed them to marry.

I feel that your present burdens are heavy, with your job and helping your mother at home. With no money saved for a home, and the boy friend's job not too certain, it would be too much for you to take on added burdens. I think he needs to look at your problem and try to save you all he can not make things harder for you He can show the real nature of his love for you by being sensible as well as affectionate.

* * *

CU. I think you should live up to the reputation you say you have acquired—that of being sensible. I think if the boy who attracts you were interested in you he would find a way to be introduced It may be that quite unexpectedly you will meet him in the course of events. Unless that happens don't try to bring about an introduction.

Words Add Touch of Magic to Every Life.

Build a Colorful Vocabulary.

Tom's a popular chap. But he'd trade the swankiest social engagement for a date with Marjorie.

Clever girl! She knows how a vivid vocabulary gives zest and color to everyday talk. And you can quickly learn to use word-magic, too, by taking easy tips like these:

Keep your ears peeled and your eyes open for bright new words and phrases in newspapers, advertisements, other people's conversation.

Think up substitutes of your own for worn-out expressions like "tired as a dog," "the time of my life," "no sooner said than done." You might say "tired as a third-hand car," "more fun than six circuses," "done—like a stroke of lightning"

Distinguish between tiresome slang like "Can you beat it?" "You're telling me!" and vivid words that have punch and pep such as "gumption," "flabbergast," "hokum"

Our 32-page booklet gives dozens of ways to improve your vocabulary talk your way into new opportunities, good times.

If the berry or fruit pies persist in "running over" in the oven, place a shallow pan directly underneath the pie to catch the "drippings." The pan can be washed easily and the oven will be saved.

When making jelly, the fruit juice should boil rapidly 2 minutes before sugar is added. Remove any foam which collects on top.

Waffle sandwiches are good for Sunday tea. Put two waffles together with butter, honey and ¼ teaspoon of cinnamon.

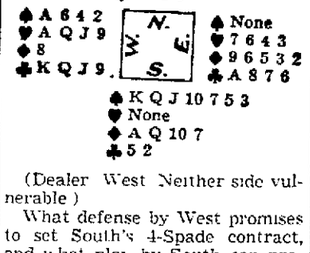
"The Authority on Authorities"

HOLDING UP OPTIONAL

REFUSAL TO part with your ace on the opening trick is not profitable in the long run if you do it every time as a matter of principle There are times when it is better to use the big fellow at the first opportunity, especially if that involves the killing of some lower honor. On many occasions this promotes a lesser card of your own hand or dummy into the position of a certain trick taker, whereas a hold-up would limit you to one trick in the suit.



(Dealer: South East-West vulnerable)

After an opening bid of 1-Diamond by South, North went to 2-Clubs, South called 2-No Trump and North 3-No Trump

West started the defense by leading the diamond 3, on which dummy played the 7, East the J and South the 2 A diamond was returned and won by West's Q. West returned the club 4, which East won with the K to lead a third diamond to West's K

South's handling of his diamond suit limited him to one trick in it He was therefore set one, with the loss of three diamonds and two clubs.

Declarer had failed to reckon the value of his 10 and 9 and in so doing lost the chance to gain two diamond tricks This would have been accomplished by winning the first trick with the A

Tomorrow's Problem.

What defense by West promises to set South's 4-Spade contract, and what play by South can prevent it?

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, July 6.

According to the solar and lunar influences, this should be a very lively and enterprising day, with much stirring of a secret or behind-the-scenes nature. It would be well to deal with such methods tactfully and diplomatically, approaching those in high places for co-operation and preferment.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a year of much enhanced pleasure and popularity in collaboration with superiors, elders and those in authority. Seek benefits in secret or tacit agreements, in which there may be elements of intrigue or collusion, but in a friendly and lucrative spirit.

A child born on this day may be active and versatile in a very clever or shewd way making its success by subtle popularity and the quality of meeting its superiors with tact and finesse as well as by its proud and generous spirit. It may seek its place in the sun through fine aspirations.

My Neighbor Says:

In many instances, it is very desirable to reduce large clumps of perennial plants, even if they are not divided, because they take up more room than rightfully belongs to them. The perennial sunflower known as Helianthus rigidus, the Oswego tea (Monar da didyma, the various achileas, the perennial asters, the Boltonias and the plume poppies (Bocconia) are examples. These plants multiply very rapidly by seeds or by underground roots and must be dealt with remorselessly every season or they will choke out other plants which are more worth while.

Large Busted Women Get Dress Advice

By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

Several days ago we went shopping with a girl who had gained our complete admiration because of her smart clothes and beautiful figure. We were overcome when she admitted to the sales clerk that she was 40 inches in the bust. Our amazement turned to gratitude when she said she would let us in on her secret

"It's simply that I have to be careful about choosing clothes which camouflage my large front," she said.

Her point is that clothes can really hide bad points, just as they can bring out good ones. And you don't have to resort to a certain style and stick to it regardless of the fashion trend. You just have to remember certain infallible rules and stick by them.

If you are a girl with a heavy bust you will look better in dark colors, and you should select dresses that have skirts which are gracefully wide. Avoid the very narrow skirt. The effect of more bulk below the waist takes away from a topheavy appearance.

One of the most usual mistakes made by girls with big busts is trying to hide them under big bows and fluffy jabots and ruffles These will only make your figure defects more apparent, because these points in clothing always call attention to the front of your dress or waist.

Never wear any kind of trimming over your bust. Let the fullness begin at the shoulders of your clothes, and have them so carefully tailored that the material will fall in soft lines. Don't use so much material that your general appearance will be one of bulkiness

The best type of sleeve is a natural comfortable one. The puffed sleeves and the very tight sleeves are not good The puffed sleeves make you look wider and larger from shoulder to waistline, while the very tight sleeves makes your arm look exaggeratedly thin in comparison with your upper body.

No Tight Belts.

Never wear tight fitting belts, and in choosing belts it is safer to get one of the same color as your dress.

A one-piece dress without a belt is the style that will really show your figure at its best and be most becoming. If it is also in a dark tone you can improve the appearance of your figure astonishingly. Prints are also very good if you are heavy busted.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

AS DICKY solemnly asked Hank if he ever had "black spots before his eyes," I settled back in my chair with the feeling that I was a spectator at a play. He had promised me that he would prepare Hank for the forthcoming visit to a specialist in neurotic complexes, which we had planned for him, by making him think that, amending Jerome's famous quip, he "had every disease in the book, including housemaid's knee"

Hank's eyes widened a bit at the question, and one could almost "hear him think."

"Why I don't know," he said.

"Think! think hard!," his uncle adjured him. "This is more important than you know."

Hank turned to Bill.

"Seems to me I do remember seeing black spots before my eyes two tor three times," he said. "Do you ever remember my saying anything about them?"

Bill "played up" beautifully.

"Yes," he said, "I think I do remember your telling me about them."

"H—m," Dicky said and looked exceedingly thoughtful for several seconds. Then he put another question.

"Ever have any ringing in your ears?"

"Sometimes," he said. "Not very often though."

"I'm glad it's not often," Dicky said with the mien of a physician who has heard a patient describe a cancer symptom "Now, how about your muscles? After exercise, especially violent exercise, do they ache so that you feel you can't stand it?"

Bill coughed to hide a chuckle, but Hank was caught up in the swirl of Dicky's questioning, and saw nothing unreasonable in the query.

Falls For It.

"Oh! yes sir," he said eagerly, "I always ache something fierce. But—" he stopped suddenly, then continued "The other boys ache, too You do, Bill don't you?"

"Not as bad as you do, Hank," Bill declared gravely. "Don't you remember what a time you had after that cross country?"

Hank gave a reminiscent little shiver.

"Yeah, that was a tough time, all right," he said. "I guess I was the worst off of all the boys at that."

"Of course you were," Bill put in promptly. "I didn't tell you, but I was sure worried about you that time; afraid you'd injured your heart or something, you used to breathe so funny."

Dicky snatched at that cue avidly.

"Ah yes, your heart, Hank," he said. "I must look into that. Do you ever get short of breath when you run upstairs?"

"Yes," Hank said promptly. "I do."

"H-m," Dicky said again. "That's bad. Come over here, my boy, and let me listen to that pump of yours. Take off your necktie and open your shirt."

Hank Is Worried.

"Do you think there's anything the matter with me that would keep me off the football team?"

Dicky's face was as grave as that of a "hanging judge" when he answered.

"I hope not, my boy," he said slowly. "But we must be sure. I've been watching you and Bill off and on this summer, and I've been a little bit worried about the way you looked and acted But I'm sure it's nothing serious. However, we're not going to leave anything to chance. We're going to find out if anything is seriously wrong with you."

Hank's face was fast turning the farce into a tragedy, I told myself, and it seemed to me that Dicky's inquisition was interminable. He listened to Hank's heart, he took his pulse and temperature, carefully keeping the findings to himself, he tested his reflexes, and asked innumerable questions about his nerves, and even queried him on the subject of dreams and nightmares. Then at last he sat back and looked the boy over [illegible] ently arranging in his mind the data he had secured. And when Hank's nerve finally broke into an excited query, I heard only the suffering in the boy's voice, but I knew that Dicky heard success in the task he had set for "

"Is there anything the matter with me, Uncle Dicky? Can't I go back to school?"

Tennis Stars Clash Today

GAMBIER—(AP)—Youthful tennis stars of six states met here today in the first rounds of the Western Boys' and Juniors' closed tennis championships on Kenyon college courts.

The contests, which will extend through Sunday, will determine exclusive ranking of the players. The Western Lawn Tennis association is sponsoring the tournament, which is confined to youths representing Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin and parts of Kentucky. Association officials said the restrictions would facilitate an exclusive and accurate western ranking.

Seymour Greenberg, third in the national junior ranking, was expected to be seeded No. 1.

Indians Welcome Rest After Double Setback

DETROIT—(U.P.)—The Cleveland Indians today welcomed a three-day rest occasioned by the major league all-star game in the hope that it will permit them to steady their disorganized forces and remain in the thick of the tight American league pennant chase.

Cleveland lost valuable ground in the race yesterday when it was beaten in both ends of a doubleheader by the Detroit Tigers, 7 to 2 and 5 to 2. A crowd of 58,700 fans saw the twin bill.

The Indians' double loss coupled with a win for the New York Yankees deadlocked the teams for first place.

Errors Responsible.

Atrocious defensive play was responsible for both of the Indians' losses. The Tribe committed four costly errors in the first game and was guilty of three more in the nightcap.

Bob Feller, the youngster Manager Oscar Vitt pitched out of turn so that he might work three times within an eight day period, was on the mound for Cleveland in the opener.

Feller was not at his best, but he still was good enough to have beat the Tigers if he had been given decent support.

The 19-year-old schoolboy held a 2 to 1 lead going into the last of the sixth when two walks, two hits and three errors gave the Tigers three runs.

Eldon Auker, the submarine artist who has looked good only when pitching against Cleveland, went the route for the Tigers and gave up only six hits.

All of Cleveland's runs came on circuit drives, two by Ken Keltner and one by Julius Solters.

In the second game two errors put the first two men up in the seventh inning on base and then Charlie Gehringer came through with a home run that clinched the contest.

The Indians made only five hits off Rookie Harry Eisenstat and were blanked after the second inning.

Legion Drops 2

Bows to Coshocton, 2-0, at Fairground; Loses to Phillies Monday.

MANSFIELD'S American Legion entry in the Central Ohio semi-pro league ran into a lot of trouble over the week-end.

The Legionnaires dropped a heart-breaking 2 to 0 decision to the Coshocton Regulars at the Fairground Sunday before another disappointing turnout, and then finished on the short end of a 7-1 score at New Philadelphia Monday.

Errors Costly.

Donald Dudley, making his debut on the mound for the Legion Sunday, turned in a neat performance, but faulty support led to his downfall as Coshocton scored both runs with the aid of errors.

The youthful righthander fanned eight as he limited the Regulars to seven hits, two more than the Mansfielders collected.

With Harold Geiger on the hill Monday, the Legion was again helpless at the plate as Minor let the club down with seven bingles. Dewey Durant's outfit managed to score a run in the fourth inning to take a 1 to 0 lead, but were unable to do anything with Minor's slants the rest of the way.

New Philadelphia came back in the last of the fourth to knot the score and then tallied two in the fifth to ice the game.

Coshocton marked up a run in the first and third frames in Sunday's affair, and with Chismar in complete command, the two tallies proved to be plenty.

Chatlain Triples.

Ed Chatlain started Mansfield's only serious threat in the eighth frame against Coshocton when he opened the inning with a triple, but Dudley, Freddie Lewis and Donnan were easy outs and Chatlain was left stranded.

Chatlain was the only Legion player to solve Chismar's slants for more than a hit, by cracking out a single in the third. The box score of Monday's game was not available.

Juniors Split Even With Elyria.

The American Legion Juniors broke even in the two games played over the week-end. On Saturday, with Jake Lyons in the mound the Juniors whitewashed the Legian Juniors of Elyria, 3 to 0, and then Sunday dropped a 9 to 7 decision to the visitors. Both tilts were played at the Fairground. The Sunday affair was played as a preliminary attraction to the American Legion-Coschocton game.

Stage Set For Baseball Dream Game at Cincinnati

Bob Feller, left; Crosley Field; Joe McCarthy and Bill Terry, and Johnny Vander Meer.

Having won four out of five of the all-star games, the American league outfit is out to annex another. Bob Feller, youthful hurler for the Cleveland Indians, is one of the mainstays of the junior league. Johnny Vander Meer, who recently gained fame by pitching two consecutive no-hit games for Cincinnati, will be in there tossing for the Nationals. Bill Terry, manager of the Giants, is pilot for the National leaguers, and Joe McCarthy, guiding spirit of the New York Yankees, has charge of the American all-stars.

New York Back In Familiar Position

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The world champion New York Yankees were back in a familiar position today—at the head of the American league pennant race.

True, they had to share the top spot with the Cleveland Indians, but baseball experts predicted the New Yorkers soon would have the spot to themselves.

Until today, the Yanks hadn't been in first place but once this year and that was on May 11 when they held a half game lead over Washington. The senators took over the lead the next day and Boston came to the top two days later to hold it until the 19th when the Indians moved in.

Winning Streak Broken.

The Yankees had a nine-game winning streak broken yesterday when they were held to a 13-inning 4-4 tie by the Washington Senators in the second game of a double-header.

New York took the first game 10-5 although Red Ruffing had to be relieved in the seventh. It was the first time a Yankee pitcher had failed to go the route since their winning streak began. It looked like Bump Hadley was going to pitch the Yanks into undisputed lead of the league when he went to bat in eight runs.

into the last half of the ninth with a 4-2 lead, but the Senators put on a two-run uprising to create a 4-4 deadlock that never was broken.

The game had to be called on account of darkness.

The single victory allowed the Yankees to gain 1½ games on the Indians who were knocked over twice by the Detroit Tigers, 7-3 and 5-2.

Red Sox Win Two.

The Boston Red Sox pulled to within 2½ games of the tied leaders when they bumped the Philadelphia Athletics 8-5 and 5-2.

The Chicago White Sox took two from the St. Louis Browns 5-4 and 5-1, Johnny Whitehead going the route to win the opener, and Jack Knott turning in a six-hit performance in the second.

The New York Giants retained their 3½ game lead in the National league by blasting the Brooklyn Dodgers, 3-0 and 16-1. Hal Schumacher pitched a six-hitter in the first and Clyde Castleman a seven-hitter in the second.

The second place Pittsburgh Pirates also won a pair, 2-1 and 3-2, over Cincinnati. It ran their winning streak to seven and gave them 23 victories in their last 31 games.

Chicago and St. Louis divided a pair by identical scores, 4-3.

Boston and Philadelphia also split, the Bees pounding out 14 hits to win the first 10-5, and the Phils coming back with a 10-hit attack to take the finale, 10-2.

Hand Carey 8-5 Setback

The Rex Billiards defeated the Carey Eagles, 8 to 5, Monday at Carey. Lawrence Smith, who gave the Eagles six hits, had things under control until the eighth inning when the losers bunched four hits to drive in three runs.

The Cuemen went to work on Ferner in the sixth frame to score five times to take a 6 to 1 lead. They added two more tallies in the ninth. Heckert, Nickelvich, Keiser and B. Skulski secured two hits apiece to lead the Billiards. It was the winners second straight win over Carey. The Billiards-Shelby Settlement doubleheader Sunday was not reported.

PARIS—(AP)—Suzanne Lenglen 39, famous French tennis star, died early yesterday after a two-weeks' illness. Fear for her life was expressed last Wednesday when she was given a blood transfusion. Funeral services will be held today.

North Park 'On Spot'

Softball representatives of the Richland county fish and game association of North park will be "on the spot" today when they clash with Liberty park at Liberty park diamond.

Hi-Speeds Top Johnsville, 6-5

Earl Herrick's Hi-Speeds registered their eighth triumph of the season Sunday when they defeated Johnsville, 6 to 5, at Johnsville. It was the losers' first setback in 10 games.

The Mansfield club went to work on Scott, in the third inning to tally all their runs. In that frame six hits rattled off the Hi-Speed's bats. Earl Herrick cracked out a double to start things off. Three Johnsville errors figured prominently in the scoring.

Petie Beer, who started on the mound for the Hi-Speeds, had to be rescued in the sixth by Bill Knackstedt, but received credit for his seventh victory.

Johnsville was unable to dent the plate with more than a single run in any inning. The club scored once in the first, third, sixth, eighth and ninth. Herrick's club outhit the losers, 11 to 6. Bob DeHaven led the winners at the plate with three singles.

Greyhound Is Still King of Trotters

Grey Gelding Sets Two New Records at Randall.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Harness racing fans knew today without doubt that Greyhound, silver-coated king of the trotters, still is king.

Although he had not been in competition since 1936, the great grey gelding yesterday set 10,000 fans wild at North Randall's 1938 grand circuit inaugural by pulling through the last quarter of the second heat of the free-for-all trot in a record-setting 26 4-5 seconds, fastest quarter ever made by a trotter.

Runs Heat in 2:00 4-5.

Needless to say, the champion trotted to a two-heat victory in that $3,275 event. In both heats, Sep Palin was content to let the six-year-old trotting king trail until they hit the final turn. Then he let the long-striding Greyhound open up to ease past his competitors to set times of 2:01 and 2:00 4-5, both new track trotting marks.

Greyhound's three opponents finished in the same order in both heats. Coming in second was Rosalind, 1936 Hambletonian champion, with Ben White driving; third, Calumet Evelyn, world's double-gaited champion, with Vic Fleming guiding, and fourth, Ed Lasater with Will Caton holding the reins.

Sep Palin, Greyhound's driver, and Vic Fleming each won two victories during the afternoon. Palin also drove Her Ladyship across the finish line to capture the $500 13-class pace in two heats. Times were 2:01 3-5 and 2:01 1-5.

WESTERN STARS DOMINATE LINEUP

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The western section of the American association will dominate the league's all-star game, scheduled for Indianapolis the night of July 14.

Kansas City had six players named, Milwaukee three and St. Paul and Minneapolis two each. Indianapolis was the only eastern team to place two men, both of whom now will be replaced by runners-up in the poll.

Sell-Out Assured For All-Star Game

By GAYLE TALBOT

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The greats of baseball have started pouring in on this troubled town for tomorrow's annual all-star game between the two major leagues, and by this nightfall there will be a homerun knocker behind every potted palm in the hotel lobbies.

Cincinnati, frankly, isn't as joyous in expectation of the big event as had been anticipated a few days ago. The Reds have lost their last six games, and nobody is very happy. If the incoming stars fail to encounter a welcoming crowd, they will understand what has happened.

Still, a sell-out crowd of 28,000, including 2,000 standees, is assured when the two star-spangled outfits meet at 1:30 tomorrow afternoon at Crosley Field.

Feller, Vander Meer May Start.

Now the good burghers, suddenly clear-headed again, realize that they aren't going to see a world series next autumn, and it is a little sad. About all they hope for from tomorrow's turnverein is that their lovely Johnny Vander Meer will outpitch Bobby Feller of Cleveland for the first three innings.

It will be a crime against the sovereign state of Ohio if the two youngsters aren't given the lead-off assignments. They probably will be, but it would cause no great shock to many observers if Joe McCarthy, manager-for-a-day of the American league beauties, led with either Lefty Gomez or Red Ruffing of his own Yankees.

McCarthy and his National league rival, Bill Terry, will get together with Commissioner Landis and the umpires tonight for a final ironing-out of details. Neither manager will see his full team until they all meet at the clubhouse at 11 o'clock on the morning of the game.

McCormick In Slump.

Terry, weighted with the task of trying to give the National league its second victory in six all-star games, isn't going to receive very encouraging news here. Frank McCormick of the Reds, the only first-baseman on his National squad, has hit a terrific batting slump and has made three glaring errors in as many days.

The consensus is that the two "dream" clubs will line up about like this (leaving it to the two managers to fix the batting orders):

Lineups.

Reformatory Club Wins Two

The Ohio State Reformatory baseball club came through with two victories over the holiday week-end at the reformatory.

On Saturday the Inmates smothered the Mansfield Merchants, 14 to 0, and yesterday tackled the Ferry Township A. A. club of Canton and emerged with a 9 to 4 decision.

Lytle, who limited the Merchants to six hits, aided his own cause with a pair of home runs and two singles to lead the Reformatory outfit at the plate in Saturday's affair. The Inmates' hurler gave up two walks and struck out 11.

Graves and Taylor divided the pitching assignment Monday and gave up but five hits. The invaders bunched three hits in the third to drive across three runs before Graves gave way to Taylor. The relief hurler set the Canton club down with two hits the rest of the way.

Only one of the three games the Ira D. Ling Canzols played over the holiday week-end was reported.

The Canzols bowed to the Whitney Service Station club of Lexington, 7 to 0, at Lexington Sunday.

Lexington grabbed a 1 to 0 lead in the opening stanza and coasted through as E. Castor set the Canzols down with four hits, all singles. The Servicemen iced the affair with a three-run splurge in the third inning. They collected eight hits off Theaker, with Chalfant, Fackler and E. Fry contributing two bingles apiece. The box scores of the scheduled twin bill with the Autlman Grocers of Canton at League park Monday were not turned in.

PROFIT-TAKERS ACTIVE, MARKET SHOWS DECLINE

Early Buying Rush Stemmed as Traders Take Up Gains From Earlier Dealings.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Reactionary tendencies prevailed in the stock market today, as cautious traders took a portion of their profits realized through the spectacular advance of the two preceding weeks.

Losses ran to as much as 2 points, although volume was under recent better than 2 million-share sessions. Trading was heavy at the opening, as blocks of stock running to 4,000 shares changed hands and the highspeed ticker fell two minutes behind.

Profit-taking was stemmed for a while, being absorbed by buying orders that had accumulated over the July 4th holiday week-end. This made for erratic and mixed dealings in the first few minutes of trading, but when underlying buy orders had been executed, the list quickly turned downward. Volume contracted on the reaction.

Support was met at the end of the first hour and prices moved up from early lows, but fresh realizing was encountered and the decline was resumed.

Steels, motors, electric equipments, mail orders and rubbers were among the heavier groups. Coppers displayed a relatively steady tone through most of the forenoon.

Clash In Feature Game

Nick's Place, so-leaders with Dominion Electric in the Y. M. C. A. Commercial softball league race, face the third-place Miller's Dairys at Prospect park in the league's feature game this week.

While Nick's Place is battling the dangerous Dairy outfit, the Dominion outfit is not expected to face much trouble when they meet the last-place Sweet Gulf Oils at North park. In the other games, the All-State Freights play the Hartman Electrics at Liberty park and the Tappan Stoves clash with the Page Dairy at Davey field.

SAYS COUNT SET DIVORCE PRICE

Woolworth Heiress Testifies Mate Demanded $5,000,000 and Son's Custody.

The skillful Sir Patrick Hastings, noted king's counselor, and Solicitor William M. Mitchell, attorneys for the countess, related a long series of threats they said the distraught count had made in Paris.

They said he talked of a "duel," called his wife obscene names, threatened to seize his son and "give Barbara three years of hell and headlines."

He hinted, too, of suicide, they said, and declared people would blame his wife for driving him to it.

On cross-examination Mitchell testified that the count was "seriously depressed" because of "another gentleman" and wanted to know if the countess would marry him if she got a divorce.

It was Mitchell also who disclosed that the countess first thought of a settlement of £250,000 ($1,250,000) on her estranged husband but decided to offer the smaller sum, $250,000, as a "gift."

There also was mention of a letter belonging to the countess which "grieved him very much." Mitchell added that the count had studied grounds for divorce in Danish law.

At another point Mitchell accused the count of "blackmail talk" and said the count had told him he made a mistake in signing a "New York deed," by which he renounced a husband's rights to certain of his wife's property.

Wearing a blue serge suit and blue shirt and holding a brief case, the count, in the raised dock, constantly wrote notes and passed them to his attorney, Norman Birkett.

He looked at the countess just once. She glanced quickly at the floor as he turned his head and he quickly faced forward again.

The countess wore a large black hat and a long fragile veil covered her face. She came into court wearing a huge silver fox piece but discarded it in the stuffy room.

Thunderclaps shook the packed courtroom and rain drummed on the skylight as Sir Patrick described the count as a man of "violent and ungovernable temper."

The count snorted and Barbara smiled when Mitchell told how he burst into tears when he read a letter from her.

Mitchell read a letter from the countess which he had given the count. In it she said she could not live with him any longer and asked him not to try to see her.

Questioned by Birkett, Mitchell said the count told him he had a letter from a former chauffeur telling him of "happenings" at the countess' Regent's Park mansion since he left London.

The count, who became the former Barbara Hutton's second husband a day after she divorced the late Prince Alexis Mdivani at Reno May 13, 1935, left their London home early in June for Paris.

Soon thereafter she placed a guard around the mansion and went to court to obtain the summons on which today's hearing was based.

Mitchell testified that "the only ground on which the countess wanted a divorce was incompatibility. There was no one else concerned at all," he added.

"The count said £50,000 was laughable. He said it was an insult. I told him, 'I wish someone would insult me'."

Previously testimony was given that the count threatened "to fight a duel with a man and put his wife on the spot."

LETS CONTRACT FOR HYDRANTS

City Board Buys 16 Fire Plugs on Third Low Bid, Acts to Keep Equipment Uniform.

The city board of control today announced that it had awarded to the Darling Valve and Manufacturing company, Williamsport, Pa., the contract for 16 new hydrants to be supplied to the fire department.

The Darling company with a price of $1,410 was the third lowest of seven bidders. The two lower bids were submitted by the Koppers company, Chicago, $1,308, and the Kennedy Valve and Manufacturing company, Elmira, N. Y., $1,387.

Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert said that because 75 per cent of the hydrants now used by the city were of that particular make, the Darling hydrant was selected to keep the equipment uniform.

He added that Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger had pointed out that the Darling hydrant was the more serviceable and that maintenance costs were lower than on the other types.

Other bidders were the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing company, Mansfield, whose price was $1,567; Rennsalaer Valve company, Troy, N. Y., $1,567; Hughes Supply company, Mansfield, $1,675, and Florence Pipe and Foundary company, Philadelphia $1,566.

City council on May 3 authorized the sale of general bonds within the 10-mill limit, earmarking $1,500 for the purchase of the fire hydrants and $8,500 for a new pumper. The bids on the pumper have been opened by the board of control and the contract is expected to be awarded this week.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

SOFT SOAP

ON MY grandfather's farm when I was a lad one of the common sights was the lye leach behind the smokehouse where my grandmother made lye for her soap This was a rectangular hopper larger at the top when stood upon a solid footing stone, with a groove in it where the liquid trickled out The hopper was filled with wood ashes a bucket of water was poured over, and the resulting dark brown stream of clear lye collected in a jug

All the waste grease about the place was kept, too The rancid fats, the lard that scorched the undesirable to eat aftermath of some parts of butchering all fat unfit for other uses was used in making soap

The lye and the fat were heated together in a huge black iron pot, over an open fire in the back yard The result was a slippery sudsy mass of soft soap. Sometimes a handful of sassafras was added for odor, but often the slimy lye-scented cleanser was merely transferred to a huge keg and used with no attempt to disguise its clean, strong odor

For that was soap with a kick to it! It contained enough alkali to bite and bleach . . . enough to redden the user's hands or make scratches on bare feet tingle with pain The yellowest muslin when washed with it and hung out in the sun and air became as white as anyone could wish The smooth bare boards of the kitchen floor, when scrubbed with it, shone white and beautiful

Many thrifty country women still save the excess grease and use it with the concentrated lye that comes in cans, to make their laundry soap I have seen shelves piled with white, hard bars each covered with waxed paper, and the only thing that marked it as homemade was the irregular way the bars were cut But the strong soft soap of grandma's day, and the old stone leach, are now little more than a memory.

VANDER MEER, GOMEZ PICKED TO START FIRST OF ALL-STAR SERIES

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI—Four members of the home-town Reds, including young Johnny Vander Meer, hero of two successive no-hit pitching performances this season, were named today as starters for the National league team in the All-Star baseball game with American league rivals tomorrow.

Bill Terry, manager of the champion New York Giants and field marshal of the All-Star forces, selected his line-up shortly after arriving in Cincinnati with the cream of the baseball crop of both major leagues.

Vander Meer's pitching opponent, for the first three innings, is slated to be Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, southpaw ace of the world champion Yankees and a consistent nemesis of the Nationals in All-Star competition. Joe McCarthy, manager of the All-Stars as well as the Yankees, delayed fixing his lineup but all concerned were so sure Gomez would be the choice that the Nationals' batting order was decided on that basis.

Here's how the Nationals will take the field:

Stan Hack, Chicago, 3b.
Billy Herman, Chicago, 2b.
Ival Goodman, Cincinnati, rf.
Joe Medwick, St. Louis, lf.
Mel Ott, New York, cf.
Ernie Lombardi, Cincinnati, c.

MORROW ENDS REVISION IN RURAL SCHOOLS

Transfer of 7 Township Farms Ends Reorganization of County System.

MT. GILEAD—With the transfer of seven Franklin township farms to the Mt. Gilead district this week, the 1938 reorganization of the Morrow county school system has been completed.

Acreage of the farms, which had been tentatively placed in the Chesterville district when the Franklin township district was dissolved, totals 525.

Transfer of the land was made at the request of property owners who signed a petition asking that they be placed in the Mt. Gilead district.

The petition was presented to the county board at their last regular meeting but was not acted upon, the board retaining the original line between the Chesterville and Mt. Gilead districts, between which the entire Franklin territory was divided. The action was immediately protested and the transfer was made at the special meeting.

Final Transfer.

This will be the last transfer of territory anywhere in the county this year, according to County Superintendent F. E. Honnold. The reorganization plan has been sent to the state department of education and is expected to be approved within the next week.

As a result of consolidations made this year, only seven one-room schools will be operated as compared to 15 during the last term. Schools abandoned include three in the North Bloomfield township district, which was merged with the Washington township district, the Climax school in Canaan township, three in Franklin, and the South Miller school in Perry township which was ordered closed by the county board. The latter had been operated several years by the Perry district board.

BEGIN CROP CHECK

MT. GILEAD—Thirty-two reporters named last week to check all Morrow county farms for compliance with the 1938 federal farm programs began their check this week and will complete their work within four or six weeks, M. V. Dounce, chairman of the county committee in charge of the program has announced.

E. G Howard, federal wheat insurance supervisor, has announced that approximately 50 applications have been received from farmers since the program was started here. These have been sent to regional headquarters at Kansas City and officials estimate that approximately 75 per cent of the 1939 crop will be covered before the August 15 deadline.

Premium rates for the wheat crop here averages 1.3 bushels per acre for a 70 per cent coverage and .6 bushel for a 50 per per cent coverage The rates, which vary for each farm, are lower than in the majority of central Ohio counties.

CHAPTER XI

Fortunately, Lynne Banker was at his desk in the city room when Jed sent in his name. Lynne seemed pleasantly surprised to see his cousin's old friend. When he learned Jed had something to discuss with him in confidence he suggested they go across the street for a beer.

At a table in the corner, Jed came straight to the point. Had Banker ever heard of a Brooklyn attorney by the name of Farro? The police reporter sat up in surprise.

"Have I? I'm working on him now. What do you know about him?"

Jed explained, feeling a little foolish, that he was interested in Farro only because he had a hunch a little friend of his was afraid of him. And also that Farro had worked his way into the affections of the district attorney's daughter, and he had a feeling that Farro was up to no good.

Banker looked skeptical.

"Are you telling me that Charlie Farro is rushing Tom Laine's daughter?"

"That's it."

Banker whistled.

"Whew! This is a beat!" Then he remembered Jed was talking off the record and grinned regretfully. "I'm always stumbling across scoops that can't be used. That's what I get for having a conscience.

* * *

Briefly Jed sketched the story of Moleen and her recent meeting with Farro, and of how fast events had moved during the week. Then he asked Banker:

"Have you heard of a girl named Moleen O'Dare?"

The reporter nodded.

"Pat O'Dare's sister. I went to the same church with the O'Dare kids when I lived in the old neighborhood. What about her?"

"She is the girl I'm interested in. The one Farro is annoying."

Banker exploded.

"Now this begins to make sense! It hooks right in with the tip I got yesterday—that Farro is the brains back of the Rafetti gang."

"The Rafetti gang doesn't mean anything to me," Jed said. "I haven't been in New York long enough."

"They are the slickest gang of counterfeiters this town has ever seen," Banker explained. "Their greenbacks would have fooled Alexander Hamilton himself. A year ago Tom Laine started a clean-up and sent about a dozen of the gang up the river. He thought he'd broken it up. But just this week there's been a new activity in the counterfeit racket.

"The cops are working on a stool pigeon. He has spilled some information they've been keeping quiet that has set the department on its ears. He says Charlie Farro is the big boy behind the scenes. Nobody has ever liked Farro but he'd never been in trouble before. It's doubtful if even Charlie himself knows he is suspected."

"Well, dog my cats!" Jed felt completely at a loss for words. "He must be a slicker."

"That," suggested Banker, "probably explains why your little friend Moleen O'Dare got the jitters when Farro showed up at the Wayside inn. Her brother Pat was one of the gang sent up."

Jed's face whitened.

"Is that a fact? Moleen's brother—is in prison."

"In the reformatory. He's a kid about eighteen, and I had a feeling all through the trial that he could have cleared himself if he hadn't been afraid to talk. Pat was never a bad guy. He just got into the wrong gang, and when they were rounded up, he was among the goats."

* * *

Banker was silent for a moment, then he said thoughtfully, "You—don't suppose the O'Dare girl could have framed it up to get into Tom Laine's house, do you? Say, how do you know she isn't working for Farro? That he hasn't scared her into it?"

"I'm sure it isn't possible." Jed hesitated, then said flatly, "No. I know too much about the circumstances that led up to her getting there. She was struck by Miss Laine's car in Central park."

"Badly injured?"

"No. Just grazed. She stumbled out into the path of the car when Miss Laine was driving through the park. And when she woke up she was in the Laine penthouse.

Banker looked skeptical.

"That might be a frame, you know. It's been done before. If Miss Laine happened to be in the habit of taking an evening drive through the park, and some one trying to find a way to make it look real . . . "

"It—isn't possible." Jed shook his head perplexedly. "But it does look bad for Moleen."

An hour of hashing over the story brought the two men no nearer the solving of the mystery.

"There's a possibility," Lynne decided, in parting, "that Farro may have a hunch the trail is getting warm. And he may want to get something on the district attorney, or his daughter, that will make it impossible for the D. A. to crack down on him."

* * *

Jed rode back out to the Long Island inn in a turmoil. However innocent Moleen might be of any connection with Farro and the Rafetti gang, the fact that she had kept silent about her brother put her in a serious position. Jed felt certain she must know Farro was a crook. In spite of that fact, she had presented him to Mignon as an old friend of her family.

Jed tried not to blame Moleen too much until he heard her side of the story. But he was deeply disappointed that she could be even the least dishonest of cowardly.

It would be a terrific blow to Mignon when she found out that the girl to whom she had been so kind was not trustworthy.

But worst of all, Jed had the feeling that Mignon was really interested in Charlie Farro. It was beginning to look like a case of love at first sight.

If the opportunity came, Jed was more certain than ever that Mr. Farro was going to get that sock in the jaw he had been yearning to administer. Now that he was certain he had good cause, messing up his pretty face and sleek hair job would be a great pleasure.

When Jed arrived at the Wayside inn, Sunny told him Mignon had called up and said they'd decided to try another night spot for a change. They were going to a place where they could tango all evening.

* * *

From Sunny's expression, Jed knew Tucker was deeply disappointed because Moleen had broken her date with him. He strongly suspected the maestro was worried about whether she was out dancing with some one else.

Sunny's smile was missing the entire evening. Jed, watching him, knew Sunny was in love with Moleen. Then there was only one thing to do. He must give Sunny a chance to help her. He must tell him the truth.

It was difficult for Jed to reveal what he had found out about Moleen to the man who loved her. There was the possibility that Tucker might not want to see her again. But if he did take that attitude, his affection wasn't real and Moleen would be better off not getting too deeply involved with Sunny.

It was after the inn closed that Jed sought Sunny in his room and told him what he had learned. Sunny did not seem surprised.

"I knew," he said, frowning, "that there was something between them. Last night I suspected Moleen was worried. That's the reason I was so upset when she didn't show up here tonight. I was going to try and get at the bottom of it."

Jed was relieved that his information was not a too unpleasant surprise.

"What do you make of it, Tucker?" he asked.

Sunny got up and took a turn around the room.

"Whatever it is," he lit a cigarette, "It isn't anything wrong. It's just a mistake. We all make mistakes. I don't care what Moleen's past has been. If she's in trouble, I'll help her out of it, and ask her to marry me."

In spite of his worry Jed grinned.

"Boy, now you're talking my language!"

Sunny looked at his wrist watch.

"It's four o'clock in the morning." He crushed out his cigarette. "Too late to do anything. She's probably asleep by now. But I'm going in early and find out what this is all about. It's going to be tough on Mignon."

Jed nodded grimly.

"That's what I was thinking. Maybe we can straighten the thing out without worrying her about it. If we can just get the mascot to talk."

"I'll get Moleen to talk," Sunny's jaw squared, "if I have to take her out and give her the third degree. Or give her a good spanking!"

Jed felt a great deal better when he went back to his room. The load was much easier now that he had placed a part of it on another pair of strong shoulders.

At eight o'clock Sunny telephoned Jed's room and asked him to run into town with him. When Jed joined him at breakfast he knew Sunny had not slept. His usually gay face was a weary mask. Sunny had spent sleepless hours trying to put his doubts to rest. He wasn't altogether certain Moleen was guiltless.

It was ten o'clock when they arrived at the Laine penthouse. Sunny looked at his watch doubtfully.

"If they've been up dancing all night, we're not going to be very welcome at this hour," he said.

"I've a hunch," Jed said nervously, "we've got to work fast. The police are on Farro's trail. If we don't get the truth now, she'll certainly be involved, no matter how innocent she is."

* * *

Sunny rang the bell. When the butler opened the door and was informed that Mr. Tucker and Mr. Patrick were calling to see Miss O'Dare, he said woodenly: "Miss O'Dare is not here."

"Is Miss Laine in?" Sunny inquired.

"Miss Laine is in to no one today," Walker stated.

Both men sensed trouble. Sunny said firmly. "Take my card in, Walker, and tell Miss Laine I must see her a few moments. It's very important."

Walker was back in a moment and led them to the library.

"Something has happened," Jed twisted his hat in his hands, "or Moleen wouldn't be out at this hour and Mignon at home.

Sunny looked pale. The door opened and Mignon came running into the room.

"Oh, Jed — Sunny!" she broke into a storm of weeping. "I—I'm so—glad you came."

"What has happened, Minnie?" Sunny asked shortly. "Where is Molly?"

"You — don't know?" Mignon fought for control. "I—I thought that's why you came."

"We'd a hunch something was wrong." Sunny took a large handkerchief out of his pocket and handed it to her.

She wiped her eyes and motioned for them to sit down on a divan. Then she threw herself into a chair and told them, between sobs, a little of what had occurred.

"We—we came home at three this morning." Mignon choked. "Father was waiting up for us in here. I—I knew from the look on his face something terrible was wrong. He began asking Moleen questions—and it was terrible!"

Mignon broke into a fresh storm of sobs.

Jed patted her shoulder and said quietly, "Then what happened?"

"Dad accused Molly of being a member of the Rafetti gang, and s-said she'd just pretended she got hit by my car and that she framed it so she could come here to live.

"M-Molly denied it, of course—and then he made her admit her brother was a member of the Rafetti gang and is in prison. He tried to get her to admit she knew Charlie Farro was the real head of the gang but she wouldn't. Then he said she was trying to shield Farro and called one of his men from the hall and had her taken down to police quarters. At—four o'clock in the morning!"

Sunny jumped up, his face white as a sheet.

"Molly is in jail?"

Mignon sobbed. "I—I guess so. Father said she was going to be questioned by his men this morning. I—I've never seen him so angry in all his life. He—he says I'm ruined—running around with gangsters. He—he called Molly a—a—moll."

Sunny said grimly. "I've got to do something. But I don't know where to start."

* * *

Jed looked ill. But he said sensibly, "Right now, Tucker, I think we'd better not interfere with the district attorney. We'd better wait. If Molly is innocent he'll soon find out, and let her go."

"How can I wait?" Sunny walked to the window and back again. "Molly is in trouble."

"You—you love her—don't you, Sunny?" Mignon said, her voice breaking.

Sunny nodded miserably.

"So much it doesn't matter to me what she has done."

Mignon got up and walked over to put her hand on his shoulder.

THEATER

In Dual Role.

Chester Morris, who has a following but who makes few pictures, plays a double role in "Law of The Underworld," which opens at the Madison Wednesday. The part is that of a resourceful crook who poses as a society idler. Accepted by the city blue bloods as one of their best polo players, he gains information of value to the gang with which he is associated. Morris should be right at home in the role, for he played it in the original stage show, "Crime," on Broadway, and besides he is one of the crack polo players of the Pacific coast. Anne Shirley, Eduardo Cianneli, Walter Able and Richard Bond are in major roles.

Wise Investors.

Three pretty girls inherit $5,000 and they decide to invest it for the future. But just like girls they decided to invest it in clothes, which seems very silly, but in the long run it netted two millionaires and one handsome but penniless young man. This is the story of "Three Blind Mice" which is current at the Ohio. The sextet of romacers is made up of Loretta Young, Pauline Moore, Marjorie Weaver, Joel McCrea, Stuart Erwin and David Niven. The action begins on a Kansas chicken ranch and moves to a swank hotel on the Pacific coast where the monied lad and lassie play around.

Glorified Western.

Two re-issues of popular films make up the Majestic program for the mid-week period, starting today "The Plainsman," the most glorified of all modern Westerns and probably the biggest Western outside of "The Covered Wagon," and "Cimarron," is one of them Wild Bill Hickok, played by Gary Cooper, is the dominating figure moving through the story, while around him are Calamity Jane, young Buffalo Bill, General George Custer, Sitting Bull, and a background of pioneer characters that built up the middle west Jean Arthur plays Calamity and James Ellison is Buffalo Bill. The cast is made up of many well known names. Also on the bill is "Horsefeathers" one of the Marx Brothers earlier comedies.

Home vs. Golf Links.

There's an exciting situation when a determined young husband who believes that a woman's place is in the home, fights its out with an equally determined and pretty wife who is sure woman's place is on the golf links. Michael Whalen is the husband and Gloria Stuart is the wife, in "Change of Heart," opening at the Ritz tomorrow. It is a light-hearted, connubial farce, with a happy home encountering a new Snake-in-the-Grass—the golf bug. "Invisible Enemy," is a story of international intrigue, of plot and counter-plot in which Alan Marshall, Tala Birell, Mady Correll, C. Huntly Gordon and Herbert Mundin have leading roles.

REDUCE FIRE HAZARD

MOLINE, Ia. — (U.P.) — Thirty Angora goats, 28 adults and two kids, are maintained at the 27-acre lumber storage lot of the John Deere Wagon works here as protection against fires. It formerly was necessary to employ several men to keep grass and weeds cut between the lumber piles to eliminate fire hazards.

Photo-Engraving Gave Printing Industry New Lease On Life

Here's Story Behind Art That Makes It Possible to Reproduce Pictures.

PHOTO-ENGRAVING is a reproductive art founded upon the principles of photography and is capable of recreating originals rendered in either lines or continuous tones. The basic principles of photo-engraving can be applied to any of the modern printing plate-making methods, but find their best expression in relief printing plates—line etchings and halftones. The reproduction of originals done in line through the medium of photography dates back nearly one hundred years. The reproduction of originals consisting of continuous tones dates back about sixty years.

The halftone screen universally used for reproduction in continuous tones originated in 1886 and was perfected about 1890. Line reproduction in the modern manner of photo-engraving antedated the halftone by about ten years.

* * *

Printing is often referred to as the "Mother of Progress" but engraving in its broadest sense is the mother of printing, since printing cannot be accomplished without printing elements and Gutenberg's invention consisted of engraving the characters of the alphabet singly on a solid substance, such as wood or metal. In other words, engraving made printing possible

After the invention of movable type printing came into being and it was soon found that printing from type only did not fill the requirements, and this prompted the use of decorations and illustrations to attract attention and augment the text From that point printing advanced with the ability to engrave type and illustrations

The printing industry, however, began to reach its greatest development and expansion only after photo-engraving arrived on the scene. March 4, 1880, the day on which the New York Daily Graphic printed its first halftone entitled "Shanty Town" marks the beginning of a new era in engraving, printing and business

* * *

The difference between photo-engraving (done here by the Mansfield Photo-Engraving company) and all other illustrating methods for printing purposes is in the fact that photography is the basic principle in photo-engraving. With photography and chemicals replacing inaccuracies and time-consuming manipulations, photo-engraving achieved the hitherto impossible; viz, fidelity to the original speed of production and wide range of usefulness

With the advent of photo-engraving came the revolution of printing practices and all the materials entering into printing, involving paper making machinery building, ink making and electrotyping. A printer fifty years ago could only express his skill through the medium of the equipment, tools and materials available at that time. These are so completely obsolete that they are unknown to the present generation.

Today printing is a prime necessity and the vital power in advertising and selling Without the use of modern printing, which includes photo-engraving, many of our greatest business institutions would not be in existence. Mail order selling would be practically unknown but for photo-engraving and printing.

Mass production as it exists today demands mass distribution. This could not be achieved without the use of photo-engraving and printing. The publishing industry without photo-engraving would taper off to practically nothing. Newspapers would go back to their appearance of fifty years ago, diminish greatly in size, importance, influence and wealth.

* * *

The development of photo-engraving has been gradual and constant. Perhaps the most startling developments are in connection with color process photo-engraving which has gained greatly in popularity. It is interesting to note that photo-engravings in natural colors first made their appearance about 1893.

Color process photo-engraving has gone a long distance since 1893. Today it is possible to reproduce most anything anywhere in its natural colors.

The manufacturer of today with the aid of photo-engraving in monochrome or natural colors and with the further aid of letter-press printing can carry his sales message containing exact "portraits" of his products to the entire population of this and other countries through the medium of printed advertising and thus synchronize mass distribution with mass production

It was the art of photo-engraving that made it possible for the drawing shown at the top and the two pictures below, to be reproduced on this page. A zinc plate, an exact reproduction of the pictures and drawing was made through the photo-engraving process. The drawing shows the home of the Mansfield Photo-Engraving company, 119 North Walnut street. At the lower left is a picture of a modern routing machine used in making all types of plates at the Mansfield firm. At the right is a type-high machine that planes wood to a high degree of accuracy.

The Mansfield Photo-Engraving company offers a complete service to advertisers and produces all kinds of printing plates.

Auto Definite Part of Village Life Now

American village life definitely includes the automobile, the United States Department of Agriculture has found.

Whereas in comparatively recent years the village families rode slowly to city markets in horse drawn vehicles, the department, in a recent study, found more than 60 per cent of native-white village families own automobiles today. Also, that about 20 per cent purchased a car during the last 12 months. One hundred and forty representative communities were studied by the department.

A special study of 34 southeastern villages revealed, also, that 17 per cent of the Negro population are car owners.

In 1904 only two automobiles were registered in Kansas City, Mo., and these met in a head-on collision.

20,000 WITNESS CITY'S PAGEANT AND FIREWORKS

Thousands More Line Roads to Fairground; Cavalcade Unfolds History.

drick, playground director, each of the city grounds presented a bit of entertainment. Mansfield's Safety Town, for pre-school children, was demonstrated by Officer Frend Boals. The miniature traffic light and one of the miniature cars was used for the demonstration.

Popular features were the appearance of the Newman school Mothersingers, directed by Raymond Dent, and the German Liederkranz, conducted by Ferdinand Schwaner.

Radio Act On Program.

Substituting for the Macedonian group which did not appear, was a novelty act from the Renfrew Valley Barn Dance program, from WLW. It was Si and Fanny and their educated mule, Ebner. The act was clever, but like all talking acts of the afternoon, was at a disadvantage because of a faulty public address system.

The Boy Scouts demonstrated some of their outdoor activities as Scoutmaster Floyd Dent explained them.

Daylight fireworks and pacing and trotting races by Mansfield owned horses rounded out the afternoon program.

At 7 p. m. Russell Gimbel of the Friendly House presented four boxing bouts in a small ring near the grandstand. That the youngsters went to their part of the program with enthusiasm is evidenced by the fact that one of the boxers dislocated his shoulder.

The boxing show preceded the cavalcade which was presented in the infield, directly in front of the grandstand. A setting designed by Frank Forshee was decorated in red, white and blue, and formed the background for the revolving stage loaned by Westinghouse. The bands, horses, artillery and National Guardsmen used the space provided by the ball diamond in front of the outdoor stage.

Cavalcade Delayed.

The cavalcade was delayed a half hour and got away to a bad start when the public address system failed. However, the difficulty was remedied and the remainder of the program was heard distinctly by the thousands who filled the grandstand, the race track and the grounds from the north side around to the main entrance on the south.

The book for the cavalcade was prepared by Herbert H. Schettler and E. J. Wesson, and covered in music, song and drama, the highlights of American history from the beginning of the Revolution to the present day.

The tremendous task of lining up a cast of 320 persons, directing the show, putting it together piece by piece and presenting it as a whole, was done by J. Gilbert Baird and R. O. Richards of the Westinghouse organization in two weeks. J. M. Barnett was stage manager. The two narrators, who told the story of the events last night were Ferd Loykovich and Al Stefanek of the Mansfield Community Players group.

Historical Figures Applauded.

Historical figures appeared from time to time on the program and several of them look surprisingly like the originals, among them Stefanek as Patrick Henry, Richard Kelley as George Washington (who was recognized instantly by the youngsters), Charles Newcomb looking surprisingly like Lincoln, and John McCann like Theodore Roosevelt. Harvey Bailey was the "spittin' image" of Col. William Cody, "Buffalo Bill."

Among the singers who highlighted the cavalcade with American music were Edith Fletcher Jameson, Mary Troll Anglin, Jane Weuthrich, Ruth Cox, Eddie Fisher, Lemoine Derr and James Crum as soloists; the Singers club, the Westinghouse Glee club and quartet, and the Jubilee Singers of the Shiloh Baptist church, who sung the Stephen Foster songs, under the direction of A. L. Gibson.

Instrumental music was furnished by the Senior High school band, drum and bugle corps, directed by J. Merton Holcombe, and the Musicians' association band, under the baton of Laurence Todd. Directing the dances were Mrs. Jameson, Margaret Jane Williams of the playground staff, and Clara Hogan, director of the Marty Hogen Dance studio.

Make-up for the performers was done by David Ireland, Herbert Schettler and Alice Partello.

Men for the fighting sequences were provided by Battery D 134th Field Artillery, and the American Legion.

The cavalcade, with all of the performers massed in the field before the stage while Mrs. Jameson sang "The Star Spangled Banner," was over at 10 p. m., and as soon as the stage and settings had been torn down and taken away, the fireworks began.

Weatherman Helps.

It was a perfect night for the display, with the sky spangled with stars and the moon high above the grandstand. The rockets, with as many as six "bursts" in them were in gold, blue, green and silver. More than 50 set pieces depicted motion as well as fire.

There was an auto race with three small cars running across the field in firey figures; an elephant washing a baby elephant; a cock fight in which the roosters jumped at each other until they burned out; an airplane bombardment over a city; a spouting fountain, Niagara Falls, and a scene from Richland county history, in which Indians attacked and sent arrows crashing against the old blockhouse.

The finale, however, was as startling and spectacular as a modern battle; great streaks of fire shot high into the heavens, bombs burst into clouds of smoke, shot through with brilliant stars, and the high explosives sounded like a bombardment by big guns at the city's door.

The elaborate display was financed through the sale of concessions on the grounds, grandstand seats and popular subscription. The entire celebration was sponsored by the Public Parks association.

Roy W. Vaughn, president of the association, was general chairman of the celebration, and he was assisted by committees whose chairmen were Walter Underwood, Edward Wyllie, Harry Bowman and Frank Mitch.

While there were no serious accidents at the Fairground, where thousands came and went yesterday, 21 persons were given treatment at the Red Cross First Aid station, ranging from first degree burns to fainting and hysteria.

Five persons were burned by exploding firecrackers, two children were injured when they fell off fences, one of the young boxers dislocated his shoulder, several children fell down and either suffered abrasions or splinter punctures, and one person fainted while another became hysterical in the crowd.

Murphy was riding in an automobile with John F. Whyland, 48, of Wickliffe, a chauffeur, who was killed instantly in the crash, which also claimed the life of Neal Weldon Thayer, three-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell P. Thayer of Lakewood.

The Thayers are still in the hospital with six others injured in the crash. Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Belding, of Cleveland, Mrs. Thayer's parents, who were also in the Thayer car are in a critical condition.

A collision on U. S. route 30-S, 10 miles west of Mansfield at 11:30 p. m. Monday sent Mr. and Mrs. John Mortland, of Galion, to the Good Samaritan hospital at Galion.

Both suffered head lacerations and broken ribs. Joseph Wisterman, also of Galion, a passenger in the car was injured.

According to sheriff's deputies Mortland, returning to Galion from Mansfield sideswiped another car which was without lights.

At Crestline, J. M. Schaffer, of Bucyrus, was in the Emergency hospital suffering from a skull fracture received when his car collided with a machine driven by Richard Snyder, of near Crestline, northwest of Crestline Sunday night.

Mrs. Snyder, who was riding with her husband, and Mrs. John Fisher, also a passenger in the car received treatment at the hospital.

Several persons were shooting off fireworks on a street outside Florence's home when a bullet came through a window and killed her.

STATE WORKERS TO GET JUNE PAY

Funds Arrive to Meet $304,000 Payroll, Auditor Says.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Institutional employes of the state welfare department will receive their June salaries by Thursday or Friday this week despite the threat last week that there would not be enough money to meet the payroll, Norman Beck, deputy state auditor, said today.

Funds which have come in during the last few days from collections of insurance taxes will be adequate to meet the $304,000 payroll, Beck said.

Beck had feared last week that failure of the division of aid for the aged to provide for an allotment of federal funds would prevent meeting the payroll until late this month.

Faher, enroute to southern states with tires from Akron, saw smoke issuing from the trailer 13 miles south of London. In an effort to cut loose the trailer, he ditched both truck and trailer which the fire destroyed.

Due to additional equipment needed for the department, city officials failed to renew the contracts with the two townships.

TUESDAY, JULY 5, 1938.

Depressing thought: Not all insurance agents can be sons of the President.

Another innovation of modern times is the loquacity of the stork relative to schedule for future visits.

Word comes that a governor is being sought for one of the South Sea islands—and your idea might be a good one, at that.

Mansfield Due for Quick Pick-up.

MANY reasons are advanced in support of widespread belief that there will be substantial improvement in business—and consequent reduction in unemployment—within the next couple of months. Inventories are at a low point and recent production has fallen below consumption.

All over the country the estimated more than forty million people who have been regularly employed, but who have been curtailing purchases on account of fear of the future, have shown inclination to resume normal buying of commodities and merchandise to meet personal, family and home needs.

Circulation of money is essential to individual or national prosperity. Whether expenditures be in dimes or in thousands of dollars, the result is work and broader distribution of purchasing power.

Business should have faith in the country's future and should start advertising extensively in newspapers now to build "tomorrow's sales and reputation for the future," Kenneth Collins, vice president of Gimbel Brothers, New York department store, told the annual convention of the Pacific Advertising Clubs Association in Los Angeles last week.

"No one could make a worse psychological blunder than to assume that there is a recession in people's wants," he said.

"People today," asserted Mr. Collins, "are thinking of the automobile they want to buy, of the refrigerator they would like to own, of the clothes they would like to wear. . . ."

"Some advertisers are intelligent and aggressive enough," he said, "to keep after people whose wants are vivid, but who are not presently in a position to satisfy them. And, oh, how these people will cash in as soon as we come to the much heralded 'turn.'

"But some other advertisers are saying: 'These people will remember. They will look back at our advertising of a year ago, two years ago. We can re-establish ourselves very quickly.' They are fooling themselves. People forget too soon."

"The newspaper," he continued, "is, of course, pre-eminent in securing tomorrow's sales. And through its universality of distribution should, in my opinion, be pre-eminent for the building of future good-will."

"I can only pray," he concluded, "that those people entrusted with the spending of advertising money will have faith in future conditions and will start now to direct the wants of the people of this country toward their products."

Mansfield is in a peculiarly advantageous position to respond quickly to any improvement in general conditions, as the requirement for increased output by several of this city's leading industries will serve to provide additional employment, thus expanding purchasing power and placing more money in circulation.

This city and vicinity will also gain, at least temporarily, by considerable expenditure of federal funds on WPA projects, which are intended to bridge over the unemployment situation and stimulate substantial recovery.

While there are wide differences of opinion as to the advisability of administration recovery policies, it is these policies that are to be followed for the next couple of years, at least, and co-operation of government, industry, labor, and the American citizenship in general, seems a wise course—always keeping in mind that it is the welfare of the nation and its people that is of greatest importance, rather than political parties or politicians.

Mr. Thomas Speaks Again.

CONSIDERING the earlier treatment he had received in Jersey City and Newark, N. J., it might well have been considered important news that Norman Thomas finally made a speech in the second city. Just three weeks after he was driven from the speaker's stand there by a barrage of rotten eggs and vegetables, Mr. Thomas spoke at a police-guarded rally in George Washington park.

Most of the speech dealt vigorously with Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City. When it was finished, the audience became vocal and fired many questions at the speaker. He was cheered and applauded both upon his arrival and at his departure.

This event does Newark more credit than the earlier rowdyism. It is useful, too, in showing that the Socialist leader and former candidate for president of the United States isn't such a dangerous person. Probably a good many citizens didn't even know he was in Newark that day. And those who heard him seem to have gathered and dispersed quietly and then proceeded about their usual affairs in quite normal fashion.

Though this story found its way into some newspapers far from New Jersey, it was told in small space and without big type or pictures. After all, it is more unusual for Mr. Thomas not to make a speech somewhere than for him to do so.

Higher Standards for Police Duty.

MORE than mere brawn, or political pull, will hereafter be required for appointment in police departments, if latest additions to the Toledo department's personnel indicates a trend.

Of the 20 new patrolmen appointed to the Toledo police department, more than half have college degrees and all are high school graduates. They will go to police school for two months before being given general police assignments.

Inclination has been noticeable in recent years to stiffen the requirements for police department service and to divorce this department from an earlier sympathetic interest in the liquor business, professional gambling activities and other outside-the-law operations.

It is quite likely that, in other cities as well as Toledo, as age retirements, dismissals or resignations in police departments make openings for new appointments, more attention will be paid to educational equipment, capability and character of applicants than has heretofore been done.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

WHEN one is ill he sometimes reads and thinks more than when well. I have been ill—oh, a wee bit. But I got to thinking of the tens of thousands in the United States who are ill and who do not have the means for proper treatment. And I began looking up figures and facts—and I am appalled. Our treatment of the ill remains in the dark age—because our treatment of poverty remains in the dark age.

And as those thoughts ran through my mind, I picked up a copy of The Nation and observed a review of three books on the plight of the jobless—a review by one of the clearest thinking political economists in America, Maxwell S. Stewart.

I will quote merely the first paragraph:

"After nine years of acute economic crisis comparatively few persons among the favored classes have any conception of the life of the people on 'the other side of the railroad tracks.' Part of the difficulty has lain in the elaborate social and economic barriers which our society has erected between the two groups. The underprivileged are, from the standpoint of the genteel classes, inarticulate. Those who know most about their lives—doctors, ministers and social workers—have also been largely inarticulate, or at least have found no medium to convey their knowledge to that part of the public which likes to believe that most of the unemployed would find work if this relief racket were stopped."

* * *

MORE TROUBLE AHEAD?

Then I read some foolish stories concerning Wall Street by writers who are not economists—and I wondered how much longer that simple gullibility would prevail.

And my wife told me of two beautiful speeches by President Roosevelt, over the radio, on right and truth winning out eventually—

And then I talked with a subboss who just had fired some men.

Perhaps I should add I then read a few dispatches from Europe on compromise readjustments, preventing war or new land grabs for the moment—

But what does it all add up to? That the socio-economic crisis has NOT been settled. We have not begun to approach it with broad minds, with the white glare of truth, with the will to sacrifice in order to rebuild.

We are cheering over the same old falsities, the same old rottenness covered with stucco.

A sick man's pessimism? Hardly.

* * *

THE COMING MAN

World events are shaping themselves for a new set of rulers.

I am hopeful the dark age is ending. But I fear not. Economic maldistribution is too great.

Yet the New Man should begin to appear on the horizon any moment now. He will dare to speak the hard truth. President Roosevelt is correct in that there can be no advancement without education—and there can be no real education unless we look truth straight in the face.

COUNTING THE COST

Seniority Rule Balks New Dealers

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — The New Dealers' objection to the seniority rule, under which chairmanships of congressional committees are determined, is understandable.

Each proposal of a new piece of legislation is referred, upon its introduction, to its appropriate committee in the senate or house of representatives.

The committee to which such reference is made has a deal to say concerning that bill's fate. The committee can report on it favorably or unfavorably and its report counts considerably. However, if a majority of the committeemen are hostile to the measure, they generally do not bother to report at all; the bill never gets out of the committee's hands. It is "buried in committee," as the saying is; congress, as a whole, never gets a chance to vote on it. If a congressional majority really wants the thing badly enough, it can take it out of the committee's hands by petition, but it is a pretty difficult undertaking, involving a lot of delay anyway.

* * *

COMMITTEE DIVISIONS

When a new congress convenes, committee assignments are made.

The size of their respective memberships depend upon the size of their respective parties' strengths on Capitol Hill. For example, the senate committee on agriculture is entitled to 19 members. Of these, in the last congress, 13 were Democrats; 5 were Republicans. That was fair, based on the proportion of Democrats to Republicans in the senate. Of course there was a nineteenth member—Senator Henrik Shipstead. But that, too, was a fair (or more than fair) proportion, considering that Shipstead is a Farmer-Laborite and that there are only two Farmer-Laborites in the senate.

As between parties, then, the allocation of membership was according to political Hoyle. Nobody disputes it.

* * *

EMBARRASSING LEADER

The New Dealers' howl is that Senator Ellison D. Smith is chairman of the senate agriculture committee.

Senator Smith is a Democrat, but, emphatically, no New Dealer.

Now, the chairman of a committee usually has plenty of influence with it. He almost weighs as a majority. Therefore the South Carolina solon has gravely embarrassed the administration in his leadership of this important committee.

* * *

HOW IT WORKS

How did he gravitate into his present post?

Well, Ellison D. is, in point of service, the oldest senator next to William E. Borah.

When he was sworn into otfice, in 1909, he got an aissignment to the agriculture committee as the very junior-est of juniors. But, by being re- and re-elected, gradually he worked up to a minority seniority. And then the Democrats came into power and he was transformed into a majority senior.

Whereupon custom made him, under seniority rules, his committee's chairman.

But in the meantime conditions had so changed that his kind of a Democrat no longer is a Democrat, as per New Deal specifications. Yet the seniority system entrenches him.

* * *

THUS IT FIGHTS HIM

If the New Deal can beat him for renomination, in favor of a Democratic New Dealer, all well and good, from the New Deal's standpoint.

But if he is re-elected, the New Deal would like to eliminate him from that chairmanship. It cannot be done except by ending the seniority rule in congress.

And there are some other committees (in both the senate and the house of representatives) that the administration would like to "doctor."

Still, congress is mighty jealous of its privileges. It believes it had better be in the coming primaries and election.

ALL of US

—By MARSHALL MASLIN

Seeing in the Dark.

SOMETIMES in a dark night I remember a darker night through which I lived.

It was in France and it was my business that night to pass many times through a little town that was under shellfire, partly burning, broken and ravaged by war.

I knew that village fairly well. I had been through it a couple of times in the daylight, though never in the night . . . But suddenly it became my duty to pass through it on the way to the front, driving my ambulance to search out the wounded and bring them back again through its torturous streets. . . . There were no lights in the streets, no lights in the houses, no lights on my car. We moved in darkness, slowly, creeping along, feeling our way tentatively, cautiously, avoiding shellholes and fallen buildings, making the proper turns, until at last we emerged in safety into the open country again.

When I look back to that night, sometimes I wonder how we were able to do it. And then I realize that we did it because we had subconsciously memorized the turns and contours of that strange little village of France. Going through it once in the light, it had become a part of us and when the need came to traverse it in the shell-torn darkness it was a part of us...But even though I had never been in that town before, I knew I should have been able to make my way through it in the dark.

I had been in many other French villages. I knew how much they were alike . . . the narrowness of their streets, the length of their blocks, the wide market place at their centers, all the little details of their creation. Driving without lights in the darkness I would have been at home in any of them.

And sometimes when a friend of mine comes to a black interval in his life and goes confidently through it without stumbling or failure or despair, I am not surprised. I know that it was as possible for him as it was possible for us to go through that village in France. He, too, without being fully aware of it, has prepared himself in advance for the encounter. In many smaller experiences, easily survived, he had made himself ready for the difficult years. He knows the turns, he knows the obstacles, he has made himself equal to whatever is before him and is able to dip down into himself and find steadiness and confident endurance . . . So it may be with any man.

Timely Editorial

Mere Man Slips Again.

A commissioner of jurors in western New York state says women make better jurors than men because they keep abreast of current events better than their husbands. A nation-wide survey to determine the extent of the condition might be in order.

The reason attributed — that the women keep posted by helping their sons and daughters with their school work—makes the topic all the more intriguing for fireside discussion.

Mere man thus seems relegated to a position of minor importance in another phase of life, suffers the ignominy of having a pin prick another of the few bubbles remainnig in his pride, and appears doomed to wage a real battle to gain that place in the sun which he has, in his own mind, never relinquished.

Women's prerogatives, once confined to the right to change their minds, have grown in recent years like grass after a spring shower, and man is only kidding himself if he thinks he hasn't a fight on his hands.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"To Crow Over."

"He was so pleased," he just crowed over that." Our reader quotes this use of the phrase "to crow over" in requesting the origin of the phrase.

The words were used originally to express exhultation in victory over someone, the allusion being to the crowing of a cock after victory in a fight. Its form was originally to "overcrow." It is the sanction of usage by which the phrase is sometimes used today to express exhultant pleasure or satisfaction in anything.

Young America Says---

Let's Go Back to the Land!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

A "BACK-TO-THE-LAND" MOVEMENT—BACKED BY UNCLE SAM FOR THOSE ON RELIEF . . . do YOU think it would work?

Recently, young Kenneth Mead of Ann Arbor, Mich., tossed the suggestion into the arena . . . started a Free-for-All that beats all records. Consequence — we've been cramming every available inch of space with splendid come-backs. And here come some more.

First, an answer to Kenneth—and an arraignment of all Young America—by youthful Mrs. L. B. Sawyer of Pompey, N. Y.

Dear Miss Robinson:

If the young people of today could face monotony, a "back-to-the-land" movement might be a solution of Young America's unemployment problems. But personally I don't think the younger people can take it.

When I was 19, I married a farmer. We had to get our water from a well, cook on a coal range. We got up at 6 a. m. and went back to bed at 9 p. m., too tired for any entertainment. Even if there had been shows or dances, I would have been too weary to enjoy them.

Three months were all I could stand of the heat, long hours, lack of fun, loneliness. We gave up the farm, returned to the city. For six long months my husband tried in vain to find work. Then I realized you could have none of the things you want, without money. We were more unhappy in the city than we had ever been in the country!

Since we've returned to the farm. I've discovered that hard work isn't drudgery if you are getting the things out of life that count most—health, happiness, and the right to be worthy of the name AMERICAN.

If youth has the courage, ambition and gumption to take it, the Good Earth could heal and would help us.

Mrs. L. B. Sawyer, 25 yrs.,
R. D., Pompey, New York
($10 prize)

"BROKE — BUT NOT BROKEN!" Unwittingly, 15-year Donna Mae Mundell of Denver, Colo., has written an IMMORTAL SLOGAN FOR MODERN AMERICA. I'm praying that someone somewhere in this great, abundant land might answer this child's prayer.

Dear Miss Robinson:

You wonder if the girls would back Kenneth. Here's one family that will cheerfully exchange a place in city life for 16 hours daily work on a farm!

Back-to-the-farm! Those words are like a prayer to this family. We've dreamed and schemed, but in 14 years of city ups-and-downs, Mom and Dad are BROKE—NOT BROKEN. Like millions of others, we can only buy one quart of milk in three days; fruit is an almost unheard of luxury; eggs are used only for cooking; the youngest child doesn't know the taste of butter! If we could get 160 acres, a horse and a cow, we'd skimp and buy some hens and a few pigs. We don't expect miracles. We are not parasites. We'd pay every cent back if we were given a chance.

Our grandparents fought for the land of the West. We'd do the same. We are not afraid to eat supper by lamplight. We wouldn't shudder at a 4 a. m. alarm clock. Did any of you ever see a baby beg for another drop of milk, a piece of bread? I'll bet none of us would have to do it again if that prayer came true!

Our bright lights would be the beautiful stars. Our strong hands would be doing God's work. Pride in the "abundant harvest" would be our thanks.

AND, for a final hand, how's this from Lois Peterson of N. Henderson, Ill.? Grand, I'd say.

Dear Miss Robinson:

Life on the farm is a fine idea—a plan for youth to ponder over.

After all, God's first creation was a garden—a small farm. If He thought such a farm ideal for the first people on earth, I see no reason why it isn't still true.

Out here in God's country, we have fresh air and bright sunshine...freedom...and lack of vices. Notorious characters don't pollute country communities as they do the cities. If crime is something you look upon with distate, Young America, go back to the farm!

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Sometimes one loses sight of the fact that Manhattan is an island and New York a port, and that this metropolis would not be here if it were not for river and ocean.

But there is one man in this community who never forgets it for a single minute. He is your ship news editor. Every time a vessel passes quarantine and Sandy Hook, watchers relay the word to him on a ticker next to his desk. Sometimes as many as 20 vessels clear in a couple of hours, and he has to hustle to check on where all are going so that their destinations may be accurately reported to the newspapers.

The big passenger ships are easy; everyone knows where they are going. But most of the clearances are coastwise vessels and empty tankers bound for Texas oil ports and some are cargo ships which, before they return to New York, will visit distant ports which most of us will never see. The ship news editor follows these ships around the world. Every day he receives cables relayed through Lloyds of London giving him the present whereabouts of the ship which cleared the Hook three weeks ago . . . perhaps at Lourenco Marques (that's on the east coast of Africa), or at Colombo (that's in Ceylon).

* * *

IT MUST be an interesting pastime, if you are at all shipminded, to have the whole mystery of the sea lying in the hollow of your hand.

Incidentally, New York is soon to have the 12th annual International Lifeboat races, right here in the harbor, which is something those Washington huskies and the Middy shell artists ought to see.

These races were suggested a dozen years ago to help keep alive one of the traditions of the sea—the one about A. B. meaning Able Seamen, and to see that skill at oars did not go the way of sailing skill with the intrusion of the machine, even in lifeboats (on the large liners many of them are now motorized).

* * *

LIFEBOATS are made to carry people safely through heavy seas, not to race. College oarsmen would find this course pretty tough going. For a standard Coast Guard lifeboat weighs 1,635 pounds compared with the 300 pounds of plywood slivers which college crews use. There are no outriggers, sliding seats and spoon oars—just a bench in a stout boat and a heavy sweep that must make a man feel like a galley slave before the two-mile course is stroked.

Right now at the Bay of Naples, and at the fjord that leads to Oslo, and at Cherbourg and Bremerhaven the natives are puzzled by the great liners which lower boats with crews of eight and send them rowing across the harbor waters for dear life. But the seamen themselves aren't puzzled. They're just training for the big race in New York.

Cool Drink, Summer Favorite

A tea julep's just the thing after a strenuous golf or tennis game, Pour bubbling hot tea over freshly-crushed mint leaves and ice. Have lemon, sugar and a container of ice cubes handy.

Expert Suggests Variety of Bases For Fruit Beverages

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
(AP Feature Service Writer)

Tinkling ice and the aroma of tea, coffee or fruit juices announce the arrival of that welcome tray of summer thirst-quenchers. Gaily-garnished and passed from an attractive tea bar and service these cooling drinks are a refreshing delight after a motor trip, shopping tour or tennis game.

So keep your refrigerator stocked with fruits, juices and other "makings."

Fruit Juice Supply.

Save juices left from the canned and fresh fruits you use in salads or desserts in covered jars.

Most people like their summer beverages very cold—with plenty of chopped ice or ice cubes in the glass. But since melted ice delutes the drink most beverages must be made extra strong. You can freeze your fruit juices in your refrigerator trays and serve those cubes instead of ice.

To give a fuller flavor you may substitute iced tea for water in many drinks. Ginger ale or charged water, too, will give added sparkle if they are mixed into the drink just before serving time.

Combination Flavors.

Combine several fruit juices in one drink to get variety in flavor Apricot, pineapple and grapefruit juices fraternize well. So do grape, orange, pineapple and prune juices. Grapefruit, pineapple, currant and loganberry juices make a delicious concoction. For an exotic drink, mix gooseberry with prune and pineapple. Remember, too, to add a bit of lemon juice—or serve lemon slices—with almost every chilled drink. Mint extract, finely-chopped mint or grated orange and lemon rinds give an appealing flavor contrast.

Sweeten your nectars with the old-fashioned sugar and water syrup you used to serve with pancakes. Make up a quart or two at a time and use it as you need it. Add some bark cinnamon and whole cloves during the boiling process—for a spicy touch.

Old Fashioned Sweetener.

Strained honey and maple syrup are also delicious sweeteners. But be careful not to sweeten tart drinks too much — if you want them to be real thirst-quenchers.

Garnishes are very important in making summer drinks attractive. Red and green cherries are standbys. Vary them, once in a while, with mint leaves dipped in orange juice and sprinkled with granulated sugar, twists of lemon or orange rinds, or candied fruit strings.

Sprinkle a little cocoanut over the top of your drink to give it a frosty look. Add a few preserved strawberries or spiced blueberries as intriguing frills. And, once in a while, try candied ginger.

To make good uncooked icing, thorough beating is necessary Too much sugar and too little beating makes a brittle, hard icing

Use Fresh, Ripe Fruit For Spreads

For fruit butters the pulped fruit is cooked with sugar until the mixture has a homogeneous thick consistency that is soft enough to spread easily when cold.

Use only sound, ripe fruit or firm portions of windfalls or culls. Wash the fruit thoroughly and prepare it as follows:

Apples: Pare and slice. Use equal measures of fruit and cider, or a 50-50 mixture of cider and water.

Apricots and peaches: Scald: remove skins and pits. Crush fruit and cook in own juice.

Grapes: Remove from stems, crush, cook in own juice.

Pears: Quarter; remove stems but not cores and skins. Add half as much water as fruit.

Plums: Crush and cook in own juice.

Quinces: Cut into small pieces, and remove blossom ends but leave cores and skins. Add water, using from one-half to equal quantities of water to fruit.

Cook until the fruit is soft, stirring constantly. Press through a colander, then through a fine sieve to remove all fibrous material and give a smooth consistency. The quantity of sugar varies according to taste, but the usual proportion is half as much sugar as fruit pulp. Add one-fourth to one-half teaspoon of salt to each gallon of butter. Boil rapidly and stir constantly to prevent burning.

As the butter cooks down and becomes thicker reduce the heat to prevent spattering. When the butter is thick, test by pouring a small quantity on a cold plate. Cook until no rim of liquid separates around the edge of the butter.

Stir in spices as desired; for example, one to two teaspoons of mixed ground spices to the gallon of butter. Use only fresh spices and just enough to give a delicate flavor without obscuring the natural fruit flavor. Or if a light-colored butter is desired, add whole spices tied loosely in a cheesecloth bag while the butter is cooking.

Pour the butter while boiling hot into sterilized containers and seal. —Farmers' Bulletin, No. 1,800, U S. department of agriculture.

Kitchen Hints

To keep sliced peaches from darkening after they are peeled sprinkle a little lemon juice over them. Then cover and store them in the refrigerator until time for serving.

The garbage can needs special care in summer. Wash it once a week with scalding water and soap sud. Rinse it thoroughly and then air it in the sun. (You'll find a hose or long-handled brush helpful in cleaning.) Line the pail with papers and always keep the lid tightly in place.

Spicey Ideas: Sprinkle a little cinnamon over the top of cooked fruit or berry sauce. Add a touch of nutmeg to sliced bananas, apple sauce or sliced peaches. Mix a dash of ginger with baked peaches, pears or cherries.

Wash "washable" wall papers carefully. Make a heavy suds, using warm water and a mild soap. Apply the suds to the paper with a soft cloth. Quickly remove with a soft, clean cloth. Do not let the suds remain on the paper too long—it may loosen it.

Make "frosted" grapes for garnishing summer salads and desserts. Select firm grapes, dip them into slightly beaten egg whites, dust them with granulated sugar and then dry them on waxed paper. Use them, for example, as a filling for peach or cantaloupe halves.

To improve the flavor and texture of chicken used in salads let the cooked chicken stand an hour or so in the broth Then cut the chicken into small pieces—don't mince or chop it Thin the salad dressing with a little of the chicken stock.

To separate the leaves of lettuce, after removing outside leaves and core, place under running water.

FHA CLARIFIES RULES FOR NEW LOAN PROGRAM

Interpretation Given of Act Allowing 90 Per Cent for Home Construction.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Responding to numerous requests for rulings on the eligibility of borderline cases, the Federal Housing administration has issued a statement clarifying certain matters regarding the insurance of mortgages amounting to 90 per cent of the appraised value of properties.

Practical difficulties encountered by borrowers and lenders grow out of two phrases in the amended act. The first of these requires that mortgages on properties constructed must be submitted to the Federal Housing administration prior to the beginning of construction, if they are to be eligible under the 90 per cent provisions.

Difficulties have been encountered, also, in interpretating the phrase "not sold or occupied since completion," in regard to properties constructed between Jan. 1, 1937, and Feb. 3, 1938.

A liberal interpretation has been placed upon the term "beginning of construction," which has been defined as the pouring of footings or any work done beyond the point at which the Federal Housing administration customarily makes the first inspection of construction.

Under this ruling it would be possible for a commitment to insure a mortgage to be obtained, even though the cellar had been dug, so long as the footings had not been poured or the construction had not proceeded beyond the point of the first Federal Housing administration inspection

Properties upon which an unconditional contract of sale is in force at the time the commitment is issued will be regarded as "sold" by the administration and will not be the eligible for 90 per cent insurance if constructed prior to Feb. 3, 1938.

Where the property is covered by a contract of sale which is conditioned upon the obtaining of a 90 per cent insured loan, the property will not be regarded as "sold" within the meaning of the requirement. Full 90 per cent mortgage insurance will be approved by the Federal Housing administration in such cases, so long as the property and the borrower are eligible in other respects.

Unused Attics Serve Purpose Of Ventilating

Frequently a home with an attic is adequate for the housing needs of the family without utilizing the attic for living quarters. In such cases the space need not be deemed wasted, as it can be made to play a real role in adding to the livability of the home.

By installing an attic ventilating fan, cutting louvers under the eaves to force out the hot air, and installing a grille in the attic floor a cooling and ventilating system that will make close, uncomfortable summer nights less irksome may be had.

Costs of such conversions of waste attic space can be defrayed by the proceeds from a loan under the FHA Property Improvement Credit Plan. The funds are obtained from private lenders insured by the FHA.

FAN IN ATTIC COOLS HQUSE

Replaces Hot Air Absorbed by Roof in Daytime With Cool Night Breezes.

One of the cheapest means of cooling is to replace the hot air which accumulates in a house in the daytime with cool night air drawn in by a powerful electric fan placed in the attic, says the Plumbing and Heating Industries bureau.

During the daytime a house absorbs heat through the roof, and the temperature of an attic on a summer day is often in excess of 130 degrees. Much heat is transferred through the ceilings to the rooms below making the living and sleeping quarters uncomfortable.

At night the house gives off this accumulated heat very slowly. The night outdoor temperature may be 15 degrees below the daytime temperature but the house will have cooled off anly 5 degrees.

By the use of an electric fan in the attic, the accumulation of hot air can be blown out and replaced with cool night air, thus reducing the temperature of the air in the house to within 1 or 2 degrees of the outdoor temperature. All of the air in the house can be completely changed every minute.

All windows are left open at night to facilitate the rapid change of air. In the daytime windows and doors are kept closed and the house will not warm up as rapidly as would be the case if the warm air from the previous day had been retained.

Attic fans are made in six sizes to meet the needs for various sizes of houses. The fans are large and insulated to obtain quiet operation.

Complete Check Of Heating Plant Timely Project

The practice of "not putting off until tomorrow" can be adopted by the home owner with reference to a check-up of his heating system now that it is no longer in daily use.

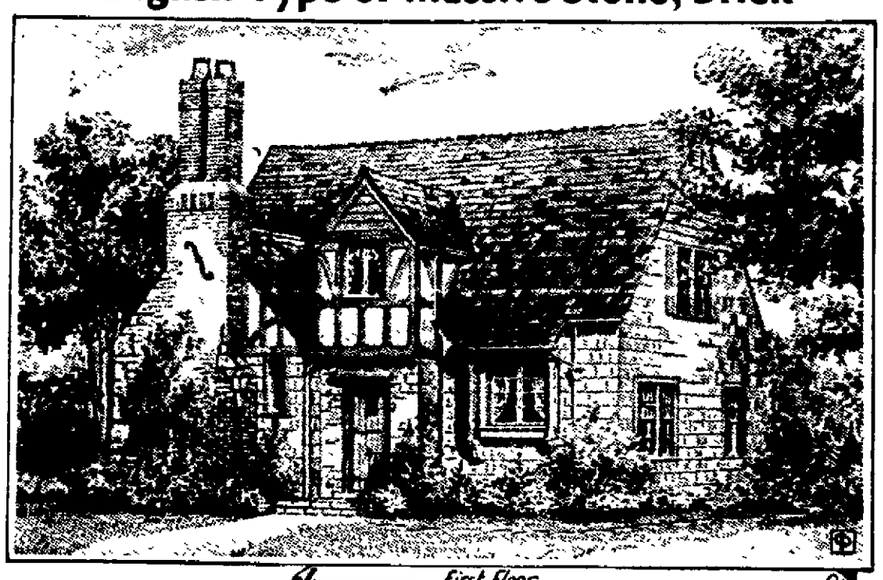
All heating pipes should be inspected with the idea of reducing heat loss to an economical minimum. Pipe insulation may also be used to reduce the absorption of heat by cold pipes as well as to prevent condensation on the outer surfaces.

Frequently where all piping has been insulated the flanges and fittings have been left bare on the theory that heat loss from these parts in negligible. When this condition is noted it should be corrected.

Houses that have single windows can often be made to hold heat better by the insulation of double glazed windows These will cut down heat loss due to windows by approximately one-half.

Give your window screens a coat of thin white screen enamel. Doing so will not obstruct vision from the inside, but will make vision from the outside less clear.

English Type of Massive Stone, Brick

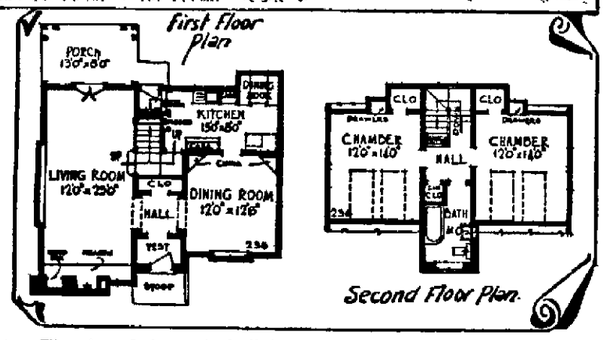


(By Central Press)

WITH A QUAINT English air this five-room house is in excellent taste and adapts itself to any community. The massive brick chimney and stone entrance make a distinctive front facade.

The garden porch is always a desirable feature of a house, and this one opens from the large, pleasant living room. The dining room has built-in china closets and there is a dining nook on the garden side of the kitchen.

Two bedrooms, each with its own ample closet, and large bathroom, occupy the second floor.



The size of the main building is 32 by 22 feet; size over all, 34 feet by 36 feet six inches. The house contains 20,620 cubic feet.

DRAFT REGULATORS SAVE FUEL, TIME NEAR TO INSTALL THEM

Considerable savings in fuel may be effected by the use of automatic draft-regulation devices, which are installed in the smoke-pipe of warm-air furnaces, hot-water or steam boilers. These devices make possible a controlled, even draft, which tends to assure uniform fuel consumption.

The usual type of automatic draft-regulator consists of a counter-balanced, free-swinging damper in the side of the smoke pipe. If the draft becomes excessive, it opens and allows air to pass directly up the stack instead of being drawn through the combustion chamber of the heating plant.

Draft-regulating attachments are almost a necessity where automatic fuel-burning equipment is used. Due to the savings in fuel, they have been found to be equally desirable for hand-fed heating plants.

As the draft regulator becomes a component part of the heating system, it may be purchased and installed with funds obtained under the Property Improvement Credit Plan of the Federal Housing administration.

AWNING COVERS

When not in use awnings mar the appearance of a building and also they are in constant danger of destruction from carelessly thrown cigarettes. A recently designed device eliminates both. It is a hinged metal cover that blends with the design of the building front and serves to protect the awnings from weather and other hazards.

This installation can be financed with funds obtained under the FHA property improvement credit plan.

DOGS ROUSE POSTMEN

SAN JOSE, Cal. — (U.P.)—Postmaster Joseph Chargin, jr., insists something must be done about the problem of mail carriers being bitten by dogs, as the danger is on the increase. In 10 years 23 local carriers were bitten. In 1936 and 1937 there were 10 cases, five each year. One carrier has been bitten six times

OUTMODED BAY WINDOWS MAY BE MADE OVER INTO SOLARIUMS

The bay window was the forerunner of the sun porch.

Many early bay windows gave a house a clumsy look that did not contribute to its beauty of line or symmetry.

When considering modernizing an old residence that has one of these displeasing bay fronts, perhaps the most satisfactory procedure is to operate. The offending bay should be removed. In cases where the bay window is located on the side or at the rear of a dwelling it has been proven highly satisfactory in many cases to merely revamp the exterior and convert the space into a small sun room.

Funds for the removal of bay windows, or for altering them so as to create solariums, can be obtained from private lending institutions that are operating under the Property Improvement Credit Plan of the FHA.

When converting a bay window space into a sun room, the result is generally most satisfactory when as much glass as possible is used. This enables the home owner to have a cool retreat during the summer months. The installation of venetian blinds, now eligible for financing under the FHA modernization plan, further aids in ventilating a house during warm periods

INSULATION OF PIPING AND BOILER REDUCES FUEL COSTS

Insulation of the piping and boiler will reduce fuel cost and will make the heating system perform better. Such insulation may be obtained in sheet or block form for insulating the boiler, in which case, it is applied directly to the boiler surface and secured by wire and then covered with a coating of plastic asbestos cement while the boiler is hot. A small amount of cement may be added to the final coat to produce a smooth, hard finish.

Pipe covering is obtainable in split lengths with a light covering of canvas cemented over the insulating material. The fittings may be covered with a plastic asbestos so as to bring the surface thoroughly and at the same time see that the cellar windows are tight fitting and that basement of the fittings even with the pipe covering. At the end of each length of covering a light gage lacquered metal band with a patented fastener is secured to improve the appearance and keep the covering in place.

Rather than leave the pipes and boiler uncovered on the theory that they help to heat the basement, and therefore contribute toward the comfort in the house, it is better to insulate the equipment walls exposed above ground are reasonably well insulated. Any necessary heat in the basement can be obtained by installing a radiator either on the basement ceiling or wall. Frequently the cause of the failure of a radiator to heat properly is due to the fact that the pipes leading to this radiator are excessively chilled in passing through a cold basement.

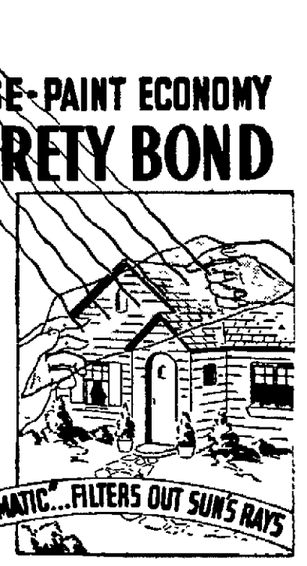
EVERY HOUSE NEEDS WESTINGHOUSE

FOR REAL HOUSE-PAINT ECONOMY
Johnston SURETY BOND


SCIENCE, through exhaustive research and tests by Johnston chemists, has at last triumphed over the chief cause of paint deterioration—the sun's destructive ultra-violet (fading) and infra-red (heat) rays. Result: a paint of amazing economy—in added years of service, as well as in greater coverage and beauty.
IT'S "ADIA-THERMATIC"...FILTERS OUT SUN'S RAYS

SMOOTH, lustrous, this "Aristocrat" of house paints brings a new standard of beauty to houses. A new ingredient called ADIA-THERMATIC Certified Oil, in conjunction with just the right pigmentation, supplies the shielding and weathering qualities that are making SURETY BOND famous. In brilliant, lasting whiteness or color, this enamel-like, multi-pigment house paint is unsurpassed. Even after five or more years of service, it can be washed beautifully clean. It goes farther, too—450 or more square feet per gallon, two coats. For utmost economy, select SURETY BOND "Adia-Thermatic" paint!

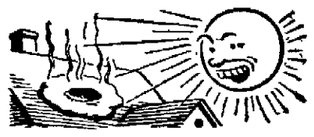
WHY BE AFRAID OF THE BIG BAD SUN?


EVEN if it's hot enough to "fry an egg on your roof," your home can be amazingly comfortable . . . IF you have a layer of CAPITOL ROCK WOOL Insulation blown under your roof and between your walls. It usually makes 8° to 15° difference! And in Winter, a fuel saving of 20% to 40% soon pays for the entire job.
